

Safeguard Past Another Senate Roadblock Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today refused, for the third time in a week, to stop expansion of the Safeguard anti-missile system.

The rejection came on defeat of a compromise amendment to the $19.2 billion military procurement authorization bill.

The amendment, offered by Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-

Mass., would have eliminated Safeguard sites planned for Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo., and Warren Air Force Base, Wyo.

Defeat of the amendment cleared the last major legislative road block from the deployment of the controversial system to the two new sites.

Safeguard has been billed throughout the debate both as a vital defense of America's war-detering missile force and as a key bargaining chip in arms control talks with Russia.

The vote came after Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird announced the Pentagon could neither support nor accept the compromise amendment offered by Brooke.

Brooke's amendment would have allowed the Pentagon to use the $322 million saved to beef up antimissile defenses at the two sites authorized last year—Malmstrom Air Force Base, Mont., and Grand Forks Air Force Base, N.D.

Brooke offered his amendment as a "reasonable and logical compromise" to others rejected last week which would either have completely stopped Safeguard deployment or barred spending any money other than the $1.027 billion earmarked for construction work on the first two sites.

The actual funds to expand Safeguard must still be considered in an appropriations bill with approval considered likely.

"The Department of Defense cannot support and is opposed" to the amendment sponsored by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., Laird said in a letter read to the Senate by Chairman John Stennis of the Armed Services Committee.

Laird said the amendment would cost an additional $500 million, fail to protect sufficient numbers of strategic bombers, and cause "an unacceptable delay" in providing defenses for U.S. missiles.

Last week, Brooke and other supporters of the compromise move said they had "evidence" from inside the White House and Pentagon, that the administration could "live comfortably" with the Brooke amendment.

Brooke's amendment would eliminate Safeguard sites planned at Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo., and Warren Air Force Base, Wyo. But it would retain $322 million in additional development funds for the two sites approved last year for the Grand Forks and Malmstrom air bases.

Last week, the Senate rejected 52-47 a proposal by Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., to eliminate the added development funds as well as the two new sites.

And Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., whose Armed Services Committee has sided with President Nixon on expansion, commented in Tuesday's debate

Gallier Murder Puzzles

Mrs. Barbara Jean Gallier, 22, 2404 North Woodlawn, was buried in Memorial Park Cemetery Wednesday morning while local law officers continued to probe one of their strangest cases in recent years.

Mrs. Gallier was strangled sometime between 2:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the living room of her home.

Despite intensive efforts both by police and sheriff's officers, no conclusive clues have been obtained.

Perhaps the most puzzling aspect of the case is the lack of motive. Interviews with neighbors, friends and co-workers failed to reveal any reason for Mrs. Gallier's murder.

Police are still awaiting results of laboratory tests and examinations of fingerprints taken at the scene of the crime.

The possibility of fingerprints on a note found in the same room with the woman's body holds special interest to police.

Police Chief William Miller Tuesday refused to divulge the contents of the note, and continued to remain silent on the subject Wednesday.

"We've checked out eight solid leads and have run into a blank wall," Miller said. He added that the lack of clues in the case was possibly one of the most unusual things about it.

Thus far, the most solid lead police have found came Tuesday when a waitress at Dog N Suds remembered waiting on Mrs. Gallier about 2 p.m. Saturday.

Until Tuesday, police could not account for Mrs. Gallier's activities from about noon to 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Gallier made a purchase at the Coast-to-Coast Store sometime between 10 a.m. and noon Saturday.

Police also learned that her car was not at the home at 1:30 Saturday when a local mail carrier made a delivery to the Gallier home.

The waitress at Dog N Suds, however, said she served Mrs. Gallier about 2 p.m. She gave positive identification of the 1970 Oldsmobile Cutlass Mrs. Gallier was driving and also described the woman's appearance.

The description fit the situation as police found it when they began their investigation Saturday evening.

Mrs. Gallier's death is the second homicide in Sedalia this year. On March 18, William Fox, 24, 1308 East Third, received a fatal gunshot wound at 511 1/2 South Engineer.

The incident resulted in involuntary manslaughter charges filed against Howard Parrish, who was sentenced to six months as a result of the shooting.

"Action '70" looks like a good description of the 1970 Missouri State Fair, which will officially get underway Saturday in Sedalia.

Featured will be such star-studded attractions as Bobbie Gentry, Ray Charles, The Goldiggers and The King Family, to mention just a few — all at free grandstand shows. Add to this all the excitement of auto, motorcycle and harness racing, the colorful Midway and hundreds of judging events, and you truly have "Action '70."

A detailed preview of all these State Fair attractions will be published Friday in our annual State Fair section.

America Will Challenge Israelis Missile Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is taking up directly with Russia and Egypt Israeli accusations of violations by them of the Middle East cease-fire agreement. The U.S. itself is still examining the recent charges.

In a statement Wednesday, the State Department announced a U.S. conclusion that there was "forward deployment of surface to air missiles" on the Egyptian side of the Suez Canal front before the cease-fire went into effect and "some evidence" indicates this movement continued beyond the cease-fire deadline.

But the statement declared that "our evidence of this (forward movement after the cease-fire began) is not conclusive."

The effect of the statement and of comments made by a State Department spokesman on Israel's charges was to deny full support for the Israeli accusations, to appeal for a prompt start on peace talks between Israel and the Arab states and to renew U.S. assurances of military support of Israel.

"I do want to make clear," press officer Robert J. McCloskey said, "as President Nixon and Secretary Rogers have done before, that we will not allow the balance to be upset—to be turned to the disadvantage of Israel."

The U.S. position has been made to the Israeli government by the American ambassador in Tel Aviv, Walworth Barbour. It was also discussed with Israeli

One Is Killed in Head-on Crash

One man was killed and four persons injured in a head-on car-truck collision Wednesday morning three-quarters of a mile north of East Highway 65 on Route O.

Robert Earl DeMoss, 25, of 706 East 24th, driver of the truck, which was headed south, was killed instantly when a 150-gallon diesel fuel tank was thrown from the truck bed, crushing the cab on impact with the other car.

The car was being driven north on Route O by Ned

Monsees, 27, Route 1, Smithton, who suffered broken ribs, a punctured lung, lacerations and abrasions. Also hurt were Monsees' wife, Kathy, 26, suffering from back and arm injuries, and their two daughters, Linda, 3, who was treated for minor injuries.

No condition reports on any of the injured were provided by Bothwell Hospital.

According to Highway Patrol

Trooper Gary Price, the DeMoss pickup truck had just finished passing a semi-trailer truck and was in the wrong lane when it struck the Monsees vehicle shortly before 9 a.m.

DeMoss was an employee of C. W. Summers Greenhill farms of rural Smithton.

He is survived by a wife, Mrs. Jeanie DeMoss, and two children, Travis DeMoss and Robin DeMoss, both of the home.

The body is at the Ewing Funeral Home.

Officers Elected By GOP

Pettis County Republicans re-elected a full slate of officers and appointed three committeemen to fill vacancies Tuesday afternoon at a meeting in the county courthouse.

GOP Chairman Leroy Iuchs, vice-chairman Mrs. Paul Steinkuhler, secretary Mrs. Walter Kraft, and treasurer Everett Stumpf were all unopposed for re-election.

Appointed as committeemen were: Jim Rissler, fourth ward, second precinct; Tony Monsees, first ward, second precinct; and Sam Freund, Flat Creek township.

Distributed at the committee meeting were copies of a rough draft of the 1970 Pettis County Republican party platform. The main planks of the platform, which Iuchs emphasized were subject to revision, are as follows:

— Support for a 1971 referendum on county-wide voter registration.

— Support for state-wide voter registration.

— State-wide tax reform to relieve pressures on property owners.

— Regularly scheduled meetings of the Pettis County Court with published agendas.

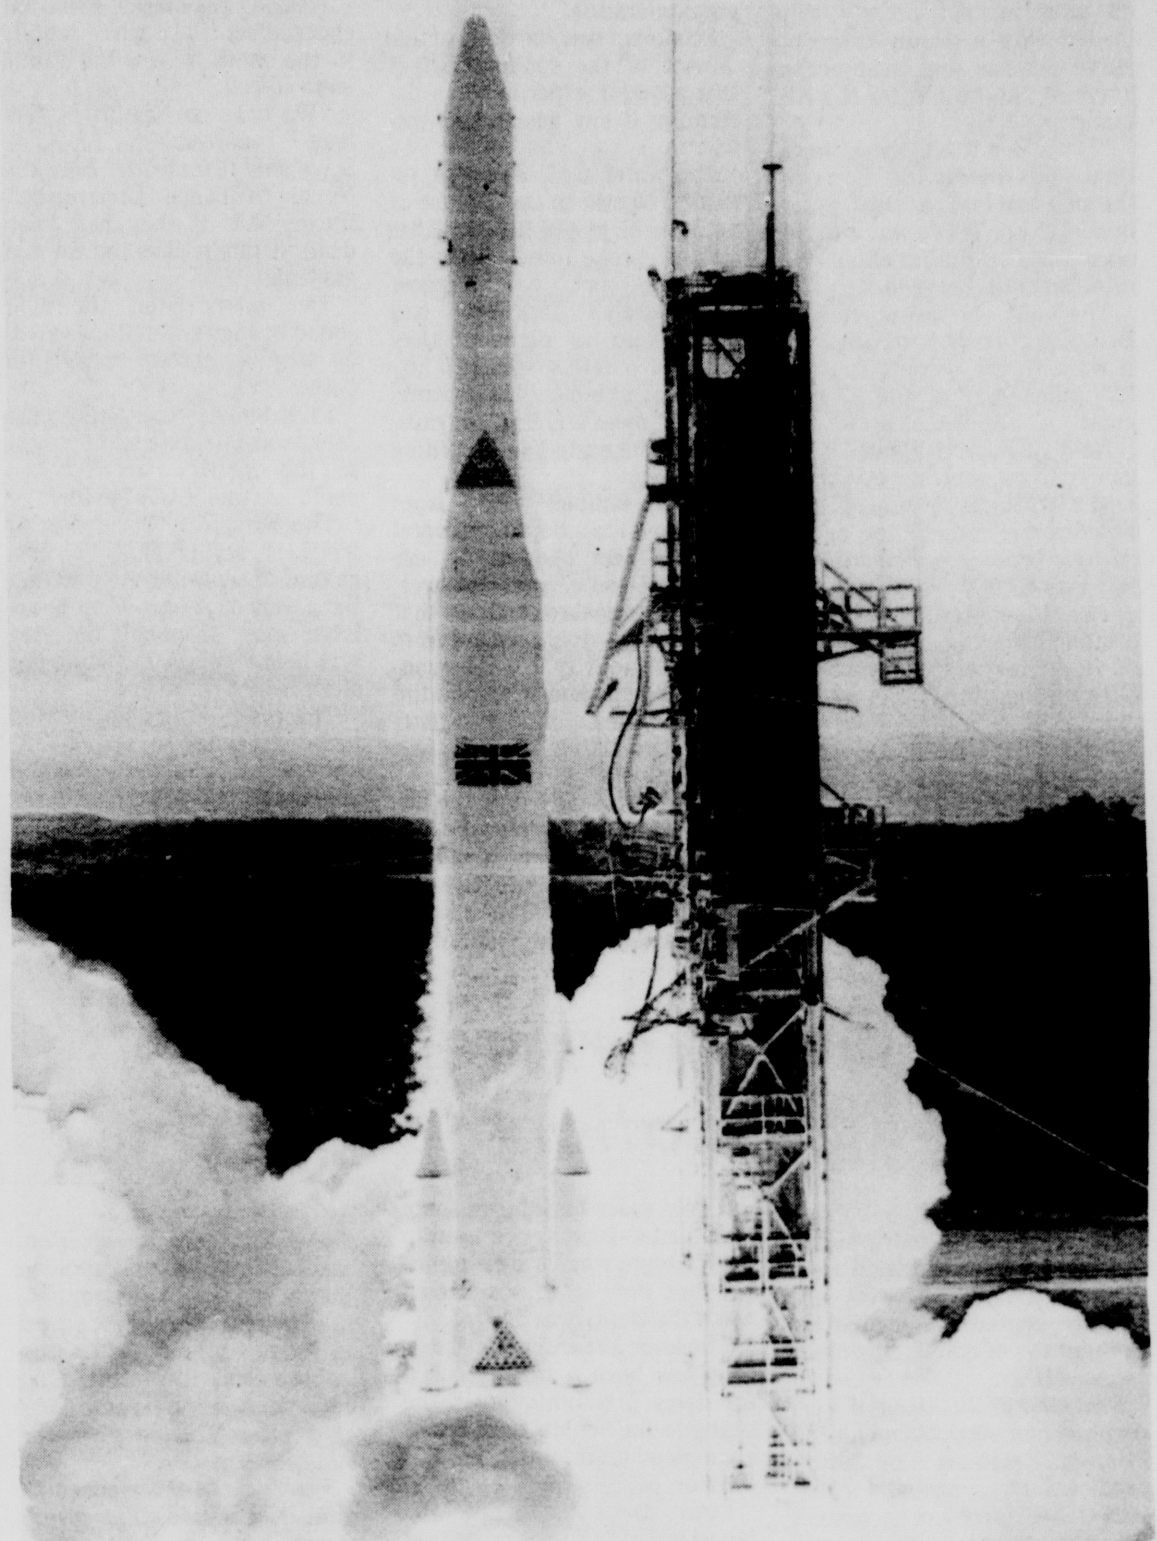

— Naming of county roads and a system of county addresses.

— County-city cooperation on services to reduce costs and duplication of effort.

— A comprehensive study of county roads with the intention of drawing up a master plan of the county road system.

— Training for and

Senate Approves Funds Over Presidential Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, spurning President Nixon's economy plea and overriding his veto, has voted today to law a $4.4 billion appropriation for federal aid to education.

But it will take some political dexterity to fashion a Republican campaign issue of the 77-16 vote. Twenty-three Republicans voted to override the President.

Not one of the 16 Republicans who voted to sustain the veto is running for a new term this year.

The Senate roll call Tuesday was 15 votes over the two-thirds majority required to overturn a veto.

The House already had voted, 289-114, to override the veto, and 77 Republicans voted against the President there.

Thus Republican votes were crucial in supplying the margins by which Nixon's veto was overridden on both sides of the Capitol.

Administration officials already have said they anticipate congressional campaign benefits for Republicans on the issue of government spending, which Nixon repeatedly has raised against the Democratic-controlled Congress.

With such a spending complaint, Nixon vetoed the education bill because it is $453 million over his budget, and an $18 billion appropriation for housing, veterans benefits, space and other agencies. The latter veto was sustained in the House.

and Congress will have to draft a new bill.

The Republican dilemma on education spending was typified by Senate Minority leader Hugh Scott, who said if his vote was crucial, he would cast it to sustain Nixon. Otherwise, he said, he would act as the senator from Pennsylvania, where he seeks re-election this year.

He chose the latter course, broke with the administration position and voted to override.

Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., senior GOP member on the committee that drafted the education spending bill, also voted to override the veto.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., arguing against the veto, pointed to the 88-0 margin by which the Senate originally had sent the bill to Nixon.

Ally Denies Red Charge Of Using Laos Territory

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese military command today denied Communist charges that its combat troops are operating in Laos, but informed sources reported again that South Vietnamese reconnaissance patrols have crossed the border.

The sources said most of the patrols are landed by U.S. helicopters along the 200-mile Ho Chi Minh trail in the lower panhandle of Laos to spot targets for American bombers.

The Communist Pathet Lao reported in a radio broadcast Tuesday that on Aug. 9 "the United States introduced a number of Saigon puppet army units into the boundaries of Saravane Province, under the control of the Lao Patriotic Front (Pathet Lao). These forces have conducted military operations against the region."

The broadcast said the move was part of the "Americans'

"over-all plan for using Saigon and Bangkok puppet troops to conduct and widen their war of aggression in Laos with the aim of turning Laos into a second Cambodia."

The broadcast said Prince Souphanouvong, the leader of the Pathet Lao, made the charge last Saturday in a letter delivered to Prince Souvanna Phouma, the Laotian premier.

The Pathet Lao repeated the charge today and said that by transporting South Vietnamese troops across the border, the United States is endangering the peace talks now being arranged between the Pathet Lao and Souvanna Phouma's government.

In Washington, the State Department denied the charges. There was no immediate comment from the Laotian government.

A U.S. military spokesman in Saigon said he had no reports of U.S. helicopters flying South Vietnamese troops into Laos, although five American helicopters have been reported shot down in southern Laos in the past three weeks.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Vientiane, the Laotian capital, commented: "All we know about it is what we see in the broadcast."

Associated Press photographer Horst Faas reported from Da Nang that South Vietnamese infantrymen were conducting sweep operations within a mile of the Laotian border directly opposite Saravane Province. Military sources in Vientiane said the Pathet Lao now hold the provincial capital of Saravane and that North Vietnamese forces are backing them up in the region.

In South Vietnam, the U.S. Command announced that ene-

Nerve Gas Sinks Silently

ABOARD USS HARTLEY (AP) — "It was almost silent as it went down," the Navy reported after an old Liberty ship loaded with a deadly cargo of nerve gas was sent to an ocean grave at the bottom of the Atlantic.

"But when it hit, there was a thud and sounds like parts of the ship and lumber crushing or breaking up. There was a lot of noise and rocking for about two minutes until it settled."

The old LeBaron Russell Briggs was tracked on sonar as it went to the bottom Tuesday 283 miles east of the Florida coast.

Navy Capt. A. G. Hamilton, in charge of the scuttling operation, said it went very well. He commended the cooperation of the Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Air Force.

The Briggs, resurrected from mothballs for the job, plummeted 16,000 feet with 418 vaults of GB nerve gas in old rockets and crashed at 25 miles an hour in a deep trench where the Army has dumped obsolete munitions for years.

The Army has guaranteed that this is the last gas shipment that will be scuttled at sea. In the future officials said, chemical agents will be used for detoxification. Some conservationists and Florida Gov. Claude Kirk had fought the ocean disposal operation.

So violent was the descent and impact of the 446-foot Briggs that a major experiment to determine if any gas leaked was lost.

Ten water sample bottles, intended to rise to the surface at between eight and 10 hours after sinking, broke loose during the scuttling and rose almost immediately. If they had popped up as planned, they might have told scientists if any of the concrete-and-steel vaults cracked open under water pressure in the early hours, spilling gas.

Water samples taken from ships down to a depth of several hundred feet showed no evidence of loose gas. However, Army chemical experts say that when the gas does seep out from corrosive activity it will be confined to a small area around the vessel because of spiral currents circulating at less than one-tenth of a mile an hour.

The hulk, escorted by the destroyer escort Hartley and the Coast Guard cutter Mendota, reached the dump site Tuesday morning. Fifteen minutes later, a team of eight specialists boarded the derelict to ready it for sinking.

Wearing gas masks, they first checked six caged white rabbits in the holds where the vaults were stored.

"We have six healthy rabbits here," reported Navy Lt. A. A. Schavone, team leader from the Naval Ordnance Department, Earle, N.J. If they had been dead, it might have indicated a gas leak.

Two hours later, the hulk squad opened seven flood valves by turning control wheels on deck.

Five rabbits were taken to the Mendota. The sixth was brought to the Hartley so newsmen could see that it was healthy.

The Briggs, a World War II freighter, settled slowly at first as tons of sea water poured into her cavernous holds. Four hours later, more than half the ship was below water, including the stern, which filled first.

The rusty, aged ship seemed to be struggling to stay afloat, but the intruding water was too much, and in a 30-second flurry of water geysers it disappeared beneath the waves. The stern went first and the final glimpse was the bow sinking at a 45-degree angle.

An agitated circle of water filled with white foam marked the burial spot.

The two tugs, the Elizabeth Moran and the Port Jefferson, sounded shrill blasts of their whistles in salute as the Briggs plunged to her resting place, crashing on the mud and silt-filled bottom eight minutes later.

Lt. Ed Gibson, executive officer on the Hartley, tracked the ship on sonar and reported on its silent descent. He said, "It went almost straight down."

The escort ships left the dump zone after plotting the Briggs' precise position on the bottom. Scientists want to revisit the site in October to take water samples and photographs to determine whether there has been any effect on the environment from leaking gas.

Kirk and a conservationist group unsuccessfully petitioned several courts to block the dumping. They contended the gas would harm marine life in the area.

Army oceanographic experts said there was little life in the munitions graveyard, mainly spiny creatures such as starfish and sea urchins. They said the nerve gas would be neutralized quickly when mixed with salt water and would be rendered harmless within 10 hours.

Kirk and the conservationists kept the Liberty ship in port until Sunday when they were turned down by the U.S. Court of Appeals in an unusual week-end session.

The courts, although not condoning the dumping of old gas at sea, agreed with the Army that there was great urgency to dispose of this shipment because it is believed some of the 12,540 rockets were leaking gas. If it seeped into propellant chambers, there was danger of detonation.

An hour after the court ruling, the Liberty ship moved out under tow by a commercial tug from the military port at Sunny Point, N.C. The gas had been shipped there from Army arsenals in Alabama and Kentucky.

London Plagued By Scares

LONDON (AP) — Bomb scares cleared 39 London movie houses, the House of Commons and the British Museum's reading room Tuesday night as police searched for terrorists in the British capital and three other cities. No bombs were found.

Bomb squads also were called to railroad stations, and several streets were blocked off as searches were carried out. In Birmingham, 600 night shift workers at an auto plant were sent home after a bomb threat.

The wave of fear stemmed from a bomb explosion Sunday night which seriously injured a young couple and another early Tuesday which damaged the Regent Street office of the Spanish airline Iberia.

The bombings and false alarms were believed the work of the outlawed Irish Republican Army—IRA—which informers told police would launch a wave of bombing attacks unless men jailed in raids on arms caches around London last week were released.

The biggest scare Tuesday night was touched off by an anonymous call to Scotland Yard saying: "There is a bomb in a cinema showing the film 'Airport.'" The American movie was being shown in 39 houses, and all 39 were cleared and searched.

Later in the night, bomb experts with plastic headshields and an X-ray machine rushed to another movie theater where a shopping bag was found. The bomb squad found that it contained grapes.

Security police raided homes in London, Birmingham, Leeds and Liverpool, searching for persons responsible for the earlier bombings and for explosives.

The guard was strengthened at two army depots and two military equipment factories. Other military installations had been alerted for raids during the weekend.

Some sources speculated that others besides the IRA were responsible for the two explosions earlier this week. The bomb that went off Sunday night had been left in a theater showing the movie of the Woodstock festival, and some thought it might have been a protest against the permissive society. Another theory was that Spanish anarchists planted the bomb at the Iberia office.

Wants Gas Warfare Treaty Ratification

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon submitted today to the Senate for ratification a 45-year-old treaty outlawing gas warfare, contending it would not prohibit use of defoliants or tear gas.

Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, senior Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee, predicted clear sailing for the 1925 Geneva protocol because of Nixon's interpretations it will allow use of such chemicals as tear gas and herbicides.

"It probably won't have any serious difficulty in clearing the Foreign Relations Committee and the Senate," Aiken said. "It depends on what he says about tear gas."

Nixon previewed his message for congressional leaders Tuesday. His interpretation, they said, is that the agreement covers only gases harmful to man. Defoliants—such as are used in the Vietnam war—are exempted because they were not known when the treaty was drawn.

The issue of defoliating chemicals has been a major reason for delay in submission of the treaty to the Senate since Nixon announced his intention last December, sources say.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who said he intends to support the treaty as a move in the right direction, said the U.S. statement would go "a long way toward knocking out the offensive aspects" of gas and biological warfare while limiting some defensive aspects of chemical and biological warfare (CBW).

The U.S. statement, Mansfield told reporters, indicates "we're willing to go a good deal further than the text itself."

Explosives Dump Site Changes

EARLE, N.J. (AP) — The U.S. Navy has switched the site of a planned dumping of 5,000 tons of explosives from 150 miles off the New Jersey coast to 135 miles off the shore of Maryland.

A ship was to be sunk Thursday 150 miles east of Barnegat Light and less than a mile from where a ship of obsolete mustard gas and contaminated gas canisters was sunk in May 1967.

The Navy said Tuesday the site was changed because of "public concern" and to ensure "absolute safety."

A Navy spokesman said, however, there would have been "no danger" that an accidental explosion at the original site might have ruptured containers of mustard gas and contaminated the water. He said this was because the mustard gas has solidified at the 6,500-foot depth.

The new site is about 135 miles east of Maryland, 111 miles southeast of Barnegat and 88 miles southwest of the ship containing mustard gas, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the explosives are "conventional types" that came from Army installations across the nation.

No explosion is expected, a Navy spokesman said, but he added that some explosives might be detonated by increased water pressure as they near the ocean floor, about 7,200 feet deep.

The munitions, on what the Navy describes as a "hulk," are to be towed from Sandy Hook by the Coast Guard vessel Tamora today with the USS Cromwell standing by. The sinking will take place at dawn Thursday.

Promoting Womanhood Celebration

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A mother of eight is promoting Sept. 30 as a national "Celebration of Womanhood Day"—partly to counteract the women's liberation movement "Strike Day" Aug. 26.

Helen Andelin, 50, of Santa Barbara says each wife should wear her "most frilly, feminine dress" Sept. 30 and should "sing before breakfast—or turn on music."

Each wife also should serve her husband "a delicious breakfast with a smile—in bed, if possible" and should "tell him how great he is."

The date has no special significance, she said. Aug. 26 is the 50th anniversary of the day the 19th Amendment went into effect, guaranteeing women the right to vote.

She said women she had contacted in several other cities—including Dallas, Denver and Phoenix—were helping her promote the womanhood day.

She said she also is mailing material to 5,000 persons on a list used by a foundation she established to handle a book, "Fascinating Womanhood," that she wrote five years ago.

"I didn't start out opposing women's liberation movements," Mrs. Andelin said in an interview from Santa Barbara. "I really didn't know much about them five years ago."

"But when I realized that women's lib was destroying our femininity that men love so much, I started speaking out against the movement."

She said most of the women's lib people are "basically unhappy people."

Her husband is a retired dentist who published her book.

Report Angela Davis Present at Shooting

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Angela Davis was seen Aug. 6 in the yellow rented panel truck in which three men and a judge they had taken hostage were shot to death a day later, two California newspapers reported today.

Miss Davis, 26, a former University of California at Los Angeles philosophy teacher, a Communist and a black militant, has been charged with murder and kidnapping in the San Rafael escape attempt and killings on the basis of evidence that she bought guns used in the shooting.

The FBI has charged Miss Davis with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. It placed her on its Ten Most Wanted Fugitives list Tuesday, saying it was looking "every place" for her. She last was reported heading south from Birmingham, Ala., her hometown.

In Los Angeles, police said a station wagon registered to Miss Davis was found Tuesday night in the city's central area near the home of Frank Delano Alexander, described as a Black Panther party member and friend of Miss Davis.

Spokesmen for the FBI and the Marin County sheriff and district attorney disclaimed any knowledge of the newspaper accounts.

The Los Angeles Times quoted informed sources as saying a citizen saw Miss Davis and Jonathan Jackson in the van "in the vicinity of the Marin County courthouse" north of San Francisco.

Jackson, 17, a friend of Miss Davis, took guns to a courtroom the next day and handed them to three San Quentin convicts, one on trial for assaulting a guard and the other two present as witnesses.

Jackson and two of the convicts died in a shootout with police as they tried to escape in the truck with five hostages. Judge Harold J. Daley also was killed and two other hostages were wounded.

Authorize Probe Of Pemiscot Vote

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Justice Department has authorized investigation of alleged vote frauds in Pemiscot County, Mo., during the Aug. 4 primary elections. U.S. District Atty. Daniel Bartlett Jr. said Tuesday.

Facts showing probable violations of federal law would be submitted to a grand jury here for processing of an indictment, Bartlett said.

Charged with violations of state laws following alleged late returns of their ballots are two Holland Township election judges, Democrat Jake Halstead and Republican Jeff Northern.

Voting Rights Law Is Going to Court

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department is going to court to try to force North Carolina to comply with the Voting Rights Act of 1970 which lowers the voting age to 18 and outlaws the voter literacy test, State Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan says.

He said Tuesday his office had been told the suit would be filed in U.S. District Court at Raleigh.

The board of elections decided at its last meeting not to comply with the new law until its constitutionality had been determined.

Pollution Refusal

FUKUYAMA, Japan (AP) — A major Japanese producer of aluminum metal has been refused permission to build a new refinery and a thermal power plant because they might make air pollution worse.

Showa Denko Co. wanted to build a plant to produce 300,000 tons of aluminum a year and a power station that would supply the plant with 300,000 kilowatts of electricity. The Hiroshima State government turned down the application, and the Fukuyama City government concurred.

Blushing Secretary Needs A New Job

Dear Ann Landers: I'm happily married woman with a wonderful husband and two fine children. My husband's mother has made her home with us for the past eight years and as you know, no kitchen is big enough for two women so I went back to work.

My problem will seem silly to you but it's making me nervous. I dream about my boss nearly every night. I swear to you, Ann, I have no interest in him — during office hours, that is. But between midnight and 7:00 a.m. I'm ashamed to tell you what goes on in my head.

My dreams are so realistic I can no longer look my boss in the eye. To make matters worse, I'm a blusher. I'm sure he must think I am crazy.

The boss is a very attractive man, and one of the finest people in the world. Unfortunately his wife is not good enough for him, but this is none of my business.

My ridiculous dreams are beginning to interfere with my efficiency. Do dreams have any real significance? Please help me. — Night Life

Dear Night Life: Dreams DO have some real significance, but interpreting dreams if out of my line. It is safer to say, however, that you must have some suppressed desires relating to your boss — desires that you don't dare face up to in your waking hours. If the blushing gets out of hand and you find yourself becoming too inefficient you should consider looking for another job.

Dear Ann Landers: My daughter-in-law had last minute sinner trouble Friday evening and called to ask if I would take her 3-year-old son for the night. I enjoy the child and was happy to do so.

The following morning I telephoned my daughter-in-law and asked what time I should bring the boy back. She said — "When he is 18."

I'm sure she said it to be funny, but it hurt my heart. What's the matter with young mothers today? They seem to find child rearing such a nuisance. Almost every young mother I know wants to enroll her children in school at the earliest possible moment, just to get them out of the house. It seems such a pity. A child's first five years are precious ones and they are gone too soon!

I brought up four children, without any help, and none of them went to pre-school. I can truthfully say I enjoyed every minute of their childhood. Comment, please. — Old Style Mother.

Dear Mother: Your memory is a little rusty. No mother could possibly enjoy every minute of raising four children. There HAD to be some sickness; accidents; fights; disappointments, anxiety and frustration. Trouble is an inevitable part of raising a family and no mother can escape it completely.

Time has a way of screening out unpleasantness of the past. Apparently motherhood was a joyous period in your life, but don't overstate the case, Mom. There must have been just a moment or two during those years that weren't pure bliss.

Confidential to Twenty-Two Vision And Beautiful Binoculars: Your eyes may be terrific and the binoculars do indeed sound "beautiful," but you have a serious case of nose trouble. My condolences to your neighbors.

Special Session Is Requested By Black Leaders

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Negro legislators called Tuesday for a special session of the Missouri General Assembly and said they will meet soon with Kansas City Negro state lawmakers to discuss a unified Negro stand.

A spokesman, De Verne Calloway, said the nine Negro state representatives and two senators, had little hope Gov. Warren E. Hearnes would respond to their call for a special legislative session dealing with state Medicaid problems and the plight of St. Louis schools.

Negro unity would be sought, Mrs. Calloway said, on a program requiring a commitment by two candidates for speaker of the House, Democrats James Godfrey of St. Louis and Thomas Graham of Jefferson City.

Both are up for re-election in November. The Negro program drafted Tuesday by the 11 St. Louis legislators dealt chiefly with urban area and ghetto programs.

Picture Industry In Trouble

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The desperate condition of the film industry was underscored last week when labor and management joined to seek a 20 per cent tax exemption on gross income for American-made movies.

The chances that Congress will respond favorably are slim. It is hard to convince the lawmakers that the once-booming movie business is at its lowest ebb in 50 years.

"Hollywood has always had the reputation of being a gold-rush town," says an industry observer. "How can you pay stars a million dollars a picture one year and then plead poverty the next?"

"The government has never lifted a finger to help the movie business in the past. There is no reason to believe it would start now. Especially with so many voters up in arms about dirty movies."

Still, the companies and the unions are hopeful. They seek governmental assistance as the only way to extricate the industry from its economic ills.

The seriousness of those ills is demonstrated in the financial statements of the major companies, most of which are awash in red ink. Hollywood also has suffered chronic unemployment, with as much as 50 per cent of the labor force out of steady employment.

Strangely, the number of films being made in this country during 1970 is far ahead of 1969. During the first half of this year, 78 movies were started, compared to 74 for all of 1969.

But figures can deceive. More than half of those pictures are being made by independent companies, not the major studios. While some are legitimate productions, a great many are "skin flicks" or shoe-string ventures that employ no union members.

In an effort to gain employment for their members in such films, the craft and actor unions agreed to lower their contract terms for movies costing less than $1 million.

Increased production doesn't necessarily mean more work for the Hollywood labor force. Of the 28 movies being filmed domestically last week, 10 were working in the Hollywood studios. The rest were scattered across from Albuquerque to Manhattan.

For the past 10 years, television filming has helped ease the economic pinch. But the trend has been toward fewer filmed series as feature movies and variety hours take over more network programming.

EARTHQUAKE RESPONSIBILITY

NEW DELHI (AP) — Members of Parliament have questioned which ministry is "responsible" for earthquakes. The query came when Minister of Petroleum and Chemicals D.R. Chavan rose to answer a question about an earthquake. A member of the house pointed out that a minister of power and irrigation had answered previous questions about earthquakes.

Nab Two For 'Pot' Possession

Two area youths were arrested by the Pettis County Sheriff's Department for possession of marijuana following a high-speed chase on gravel roads northeast of LaMonte Tuesday night.

Presently in the Pettis County jail in lieu of $15,000 bond apiece are James Mitchell, 19, 1604 East 11th, and Riley Kinkle, 18, LaMonte.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said a barn on a farm a few miles northwest of LaMonte was placed under surveillance after the farmer reported he found marijuana in the hay loft.

Two youths arrived around 9 p.m. and picked up the marijuana and placed it in their panel truck, according to the sheriff. When authorities moved in to make the arrest, the pair took off in the truck and were apprehended only after a chase through winding gravel roads at speeds in excess of 100 m.p.h.

Kinkle escaped from the vehicle but was picked up at 3 a.m. Wednesday morning.

Sheriff Fairfax said that several pounds of uncured marijuana were found in the truck and in bags along the roadways, which apparently had been thrown out during the chase.

The pair are scheduled to be arraigned in Magistrate Court Thursday.

Kindle was just released from the Pettis County jail Monday following his petition for a writ of habeas corpus. He had been charged with contempt of court for failure to carry out duties set in lieu of fine by the LaMonte municipal court.

Burch Knocks Coverage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Federal Communications Commission has criticized news coverage of an FCC ruling that television networks must give more opportunity for antiwar spokesmen to be heard.

Dean Burch told a news conference Tuesday the ruling had been misinterpreted as requiring that antiwar spokesmen be given five prime-time television periods to rebut President Nixon's statements.

The commission, Burch said, "expressly rejected any principle embodying right of reply or rebuttal to the President. We specifically denied requests that a right of reply exists in anyone to respond to the president or any spokesman, whomever he may be, when speaking on a controversial issue of public importance."

In announcing the ruling, the FCC noted that Nixon—as the major spokesman for one side of the war issue—had made five televised addresses since November 1969.

Considering Nixon's five addresses, the ruling held, those who oppose the Vietnam war should be given at least one more uninterrupted opportunity—but not necessarily five—to outline their views.

Burch, who was named FCC chairman by Nixon, said the commission's press release announcing the decision last Friday compounded the problem.

The release began: "The major television networks must afford prime time for presentation of contrasting viewpoints to the President's views on the war in Southeast Asia, presented by him in five television addresses since November 1969, the FCC has ruled."

Schedule Welfare Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee has scheduled hearings on President Nixon's $4 billion welfare reform bill, improving chances that Congress will have to resume its business after the Nov. 3 elections.

The committee announced Tuesday its long-delayed hearings on welfare and a companion Social Security-medicare bill will get under way Monday.

But the committee said it appears the hearings will run as late as Oct. 10—less than four weeks before the elections—because 400 persons have asked to testify.

Senate leaders have said if business is not completed by Oct. 15, Congress will have to return after the election recess.

76, who died Sunday, were held at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Huston-Hadley Funeral Home, with the Rev. David E. Mills officiating.

Burial was in Laurel Oak Cemetery.

Police Report

It was incorrectly stated in Tuesday's Police Reports that James D. Sweargin lived at 1017 South Massachusetts. Though that is the address Sweargin gave police, his father, Ernest Sweargin, said the youth hasn't lived at that address for over a year.

Rebecca Foss, 208 South Quincy, told Sedalia police Tuesday that her bicycle was stolen from the Liberty Park swimming pool area Tuesday evening.

Ed Abney, Warrensburg, reported to police at 4:15 a.m. Tuesday that a rock had been thrown through an electric sign at Tylers' Restaurant at the Fairgrounds. There was no estimate of damage.

Ronald Pummill, 1703 South Grand, told police that he found his dog shot to death in the back yard at the above residence at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday. The animal had been shot in the head.

Jeff Williams, 1815 South Park, reported the theft of an eight-track tape player from his car. He told police the item was valued at $44 and was stolen sometime Tuesday.

Police received a report from Smith-Cotton High School at 10 a.m. Wednesday that 37 American flags had been stolen from the building within the last 60 days.

The flags were valued at $113.80. Police are investigating several leads.

that "I just don't think the Senate will march up the hill one week and down the next."

The likely final result was clouded by reports some senators on both sides of the question, which also split the Senate last year, will be absent.

One Republican, who last Wednesday voted for the Cooper-Hart amendment, confided that he may decide to keep a speaking engagement at the time of the roll call.

"Why should we take a beating twice on this?" the senator asked.

Brooke said his amendment offers "the constructive middle ground for which we have all been groping on this divisive issue."

But Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a ranking member of the Armed Services Committee who is given most of the credit for getting Safeguard approved last year, said no compromise is possible.

Approval of the Brooke plan, he said, would eventually boost the total cost by $500 million, the money he said it would take to strengthen the first two sites equal to the protection afforded by expansion to two more.

He rejected Brooke's thesis that an upgraded first phase will be a sufficient inducement to win concessions at the strategic arms limitation talks, which resume at Helsinki in November.

Sens. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., and Robert Dole, R-Kan., both said the Brooke proposal would result in "less defense for the same amount of money."

Cholera Plagues Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — Travel restrictions still are in effect and three cities remain quarantined in southern Russia because of cholera. Soviet health officials continue to stress household cleanliness.

Although Soviet authorities have declared only three cities closed, travelers returning from Black Sea resorts reported soldiers were preventing entry to the Crimean peninsula cities of Kerch and Yevpatoriya.

The three officially closed cities are the Caspian Sea port of Astrakhan where cholera was first reported by the Soviet press two weeks ago, the industrial city of Volgograd and the Black Sea port of Odessa.

Other than preventing access to the three closed cities, the cholera has had little effect on foreigners traveling under the supervision of the government agency Intourist.

But all travelers who do not have previously arranged accommodations are denied travel permits to most of southern Russia. Authorities said this was to prevent overcrowding and unsanitary conditions.

An uncooperative information policy at the Soviet Health Ministry has prevented a reliable estimate of the seriousness of the outbreak. No figures have been published. But thousands are affected by the quarantine and travel restrictions.

In Moscow and other cities multicolored posters are abundant in markets and food stores warning shoppers to thoroughly clean all food and boil all drinking water.

Soviet television aired a 20-minute panel discussion Monday night on preventing the spread of cholera by strict sanitary measures in homes, restaurants, public facilities and stores.

According to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow: "No Americans have contracted the disease and as far as we know no American travelers are in the quarantined cities."

closed Tuesday that U.S. planes are making high-level reconnaissance flights on the Israeli side of the cease-fire line. The flights are made by U2 aircraft with the full knowledge of both Israel and Egypt.

The ranking Egyptian diplomat in Washington, Ashraf Ghorbal, was summoned to the State Department at noon today, reportedly to receive a report on U.S. views of the cease-fire peace talk situation at this point.

Asst. Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco also held a late morning meeting with Jordanian Ambassador Abdul Hamid Sharaf.

Jordan is the third country involved in the U.S.-sponsored agreement to stop the shooting and start talking under the auspices of United Nations mediator Gunnar Jarring.

U.S. officials made plain that they would like to see a soft-peddling of the alleged true violations and a beginning of the peace talks planned among the rival parties under the auspices of the U.N. mediator.

Israel has been complaining that Egypt has been taking advantage of the standstill cease fire begun Aug. 8 to build up her missile strength in the truce zone along the Suez Canal.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has stated the United States does not have uncontested proof that Egyptians have been bolstering their missile buildups.

The United States has used both high-altitude U2 reconnaissance planes and spy-in-space satellites to watch for Egyptian or Israeli truce violations in the Suez Canal area, government sources say.

But whatever its far-seeing cameras have detected, the United States is considered likely to play down any alleged violations of the ceasefire and urge the Israelis and Egyptians to begin peace talks.

U.S. officials say they have been studying Israeli complaints on the basis of independent intelligence reports and information supplied by the Israelis.

Israeli ambassador Yitzhak Rabin met Tuesday with Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco before returning home for a vacation.

Sisco was reported to have given Rabin the gist of the proposed U.S. statement.

Revolution Has Been Slow, Steady and Quiet at Middlebury College

EDITOR'S NOTE—The writer of the following is a 1965 graduate of Middlebury College. He returned to his alma mater recently to report on the changes in the school during the past five years.

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (AP) — The revolution has finally come to Middlebury College. It has not been a violent revolution, not even a loud one. It has been slow and steady and cautious.

Little has been heard about the changes that have been going on at little liberal arts schools like Middlebury. The attention has been on the bigger more urban-oriented ones like Berkeley, Columbia and Harvard where the academic revolution has been more violent and swift.

But schools like Middlebury, Washington and Lee in Lexington, Va., Ripon in Ripon, Wis., Hobart in Geneva, N.Y., Williams in Williamstown, Mass., Whittier in Whittier, Calif., and others have been listening to the revolution and have responded.

These schools—among the most demanding academically in the country—have not suffered much from violent demonstrations.

But changes have occurred at these small—under 2,000 undergraduates—schools and they have been radical.

Middlebury, a coeducational school of about 1,600, is off the beaten path—located geographically from the problems of urban living. The campus is neatly planned and neatly set on one of the numerous, gently sloping Vermont hills. The buildings are mostly Vermont granite—the newer ones only facaded with the stone because of its expense. The student body has a certain sameness such as the buildings. Students are, in the main, financially well off. Some 25 per cent of the parents of this year's freshman class earned $30,000 or more each year. About 40 per cent of the students attended a private school before coming to "the college in the middle of the Green Mountains."

The radicals at Middlebury are a little tame. The average student probably would prefer skiing to talking politics. Some faculty get more excited by white water kayaking than academic freedom.

Nevertheless, an alumnus of the school doesn't have to be out very long to suffer a severe case of cultural shock when he returns to a visit to alma mater.

A member of the class of 1965, in Vermont for his fifth reunion, stopped by the college to watch the commencement procession. He saw many of the men wearing shoulder-length hair. Many of those graduating didn't have on the traditional academic caps and gowns, having decided instead to donate the rental costs to the antiwar effort. At dinner time, he wandered over to his fraternity to see how the old place was. It was the Chi Psi house, one of the strongest on campus. On the house bulletin board, he noticed a petition calling for doing away with the school yearbook and saying that the money could be better spent on scholarships.

When the alumnus was a senior at Middlebury in 1965, the school's social life revolved around the fraternities. Every sophomore male worried about getting into the house of his choice. There were 10 houses then, and nearly 95 per cent of the men were members of one house or another.

Today there are eight houses and one of them announced it is closing next fall. Only about 40 per cent of the men belong to houses. There were five sororities on campus in 1965; there are none now.

Relaxation of social regulations is the salient reason for the loss of prestige of fraternities at Middlebury.

Five years ago women at Middlebury were given a student handbook filled with regulations telling them what they could and could not do. They could not dance in a public place on Sunday. They could not wear Bermuda shorts to class. They could not smoke in their rooms or on the street. They had to be in their dormitory rooms by 11 p.m. on week nights and 1 a.m. on Saturday nights.

Most important of all, they could not enter a male student's room, under penalty of expulsion.

When today's freshman woman enters Middlebury, she receives a handbook that contains none of these things. Except for the first semester of her freshman year, a Middlebury woman can come and go as she pleases into any college building or room. And they do.

More sex? Nobody really knows.

"It's available," said one freshman male.

"I have been hardpressed to find out whether there is more sex than when I was in college," says Dr. George F. Parton Jr., the school's medical director—a position nonexistent five years ago. "I doubt there are many girls who take the pill just in case something occurs."

But Parton, in his 50s, says most of the coeds are taking the pill by their senior year. He says there are a good number of couples "who are virtually living together."

Certain other effects of the change in social regulations are more readily determinable.

"There has been a tendency for more 1 to 1 and small group relationships," says Dean of Women Elizabeth B. Kelly. "There are a few big dances, big parties like there were even five years ago."

Dean Kelly—or "Ma," as students have called her for 20 years—admits that she fought some of the social changes, especially the one allowing women in men's dorms.

"But we had to change or we wouldn't be in business as a college today," says the 62-year-old dean who retired this summer. "If their parents let them do these things, why shouldn't we?"

Winter Carnival has always been the biggest weekend of the year at Middlebury. Though many people danced last carnival to rock bands in the basements of fraternities and drank plenty of keg beer, many others quietly assembled in small groups in student rooms and passed around joints of marijuana.

"I would say that a majority of the students have used drugs," says Dean of the College Dennis O'Brien.

Dr. Parton goes further and says 90 per cent have at least tried drugs and says one or two have experimented with hard narcotics like heroin.

Drugs haven't replaced beer, but it is not unreasonable to say that the two are tied for first place as the most popular intoxicant at Middlebury. And the acceptance of drugs has been rapid. At Middlebury, for all practical purposes, pot-smoking was nonexistent five years ago.

"Pot is a very common thing and it's not restricted to any part of the student body that you could characterize," says Steve Early, editor of the school newspaper, The Campus. "It's a lot neater and cleaner than drinking."

"All drug problems are treated as medical problems," says Dean O'Brien in outlining Middlebury's policy toward student drug use—a policy similar to other schools surveyed.

Middlebury apparently has an agreement with local police that there will be no drug raids on campus.

With the liberalization of the social life at Middlebury has come the liberalization of the academic schedule. It has gone from a five-course, two semester system to the so-called "4-1-4" three semester plan. In the fall and spring terms, the student takes four courses, but during the five-week winter term he takes one course—a course designed by himself. Faculty are allowed to teach courses of their own design also. Just this spring, the faculty voted to do away with required courses for freshmen.

In 1965, freshmen and sophomores at Middlebury were required to take a Reserve Officers Training Corps course. It was optional for the two upper classes. The courses were for academic credit and the instructors had faculty status. Nearly half the graduating class received second lieutenant bars at graduation. Some 593 were enrolled in ROTC in 1965.

Today, only 83 students are enrolled in ROTC.

The fight against ROTC at Middlebury points up another revolutionary change at the Vermont school. The students have discovered politics. Politics and political dissent were discussed infrequently five years ago and their development at Middlebury has been slow and steady.

"Middlebury has really been insulated from turmoil," says editor Early.

Two years ago about 25 to 30 students turned out to picket the Dow Chemical Co. recruiter—a favorite student target. Last spring, when a Central Intelligence Agency man showed up, there were 200 pickets to greet him. When the four students were killed this spring at Ohio's Kent State University, 1,000 students packed themselves into the Meade Chapel to discuss what they should do.

After Cambodia, the students voted to close the school down for a week to pursue antiwar efforts.

At schools like Middlebury five years ago, the major political activity came from campus chapters of the Young Democrats and Young Republicans who had small and rather inactive memberships.

At Middlebury, there has been a great deal of political pressure from students for the school to admit more disadvantaged students.

The cost of attending a small school like Middlebury makes it impossible for a family of meager economic means to send the children there without financial aid. Total costs for one year at Middlebury are about $4,300.

In 1965, the total budget for the school was about $4.9 million. For the fiscal year ending this June, the budget had jumped to $7.6 million.

Finding room in the budget for financial aid has been very difficult, and the school's endowment remains low.

Panel Suggests Scrapping Plans For Supersonic Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House-Senate efficiency panel recommended today that the government get out of the program to develop a supersonic transport plane.

The plane eventually could cost federal taxpayers $3 billion, earn little or no return and prove of negligible public benefit, said a report by the joint subcommittee on economy in government.

The administration has proposed $290 million in SST development subsidies this year, which the group urged be stricken. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman, is sponsoring an amendment to do so.

Dissenting from the majority recommendation was Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, who declared that if the panel "had been advising Queen Isabella, we would all still be in Barcelona waiting to prove the world round before during the Atlantic."

The subcommittee report now goes to the full Joint Economic Committee.

Brown said the report "blurred facts with suspicions and used tortured and frequently contradictory logic to come to conclusions about future U.S. transportation policy which will not bear close examination."

Proxmire released the report at a news conference today and said in prepared remarks he is hopeful the Senate will approve soon his amendment to the Department of Transportation's budget bill.

"If Congress succeeds in reordering priorities this year," he said, "there is no doubt in my mind that the SST will wind up right at the bottom of the list, where it belongs."

Despite the $290 million sought this year, the report said "no assurance can be given that there is any upper limit on the eventual total cost to the Government" and added prospects are "remote" the government will eventually recover its investment.

The Boeing Co., which won the government's SST contract, would have to sell 300 of the faster-than-sound planes before it would return the federal loan, the report said. Subsequent royalties cease under the contract when the government earns 6 per cent on its investment.

The report said 6 per cent is a poor rate of return in today's market and added "our private witnesses did not feel prospects for selling 300 SSTs were very bright."

The report was endorsed by Sens. Proxmire, Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho, Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Reps. Wright Patman, D-Tex., Martha W. Griffiths, D-Mich., William S. Moorehead, D-Pa., and Barber B. Conable Jr., R-N.Y. Brown alone dissented and Sens. John Sparkman, D-Ala., and Stuart Symington, D-Mo., neither endorsed nor dissented from the report.

In addition to what it considers specious financial arrangements between the Boeing Co. and the government, the subcommittee:

—Said employment potential of the SST program is "modest" with the prototype program alone worth 20,000 jobs. The panel said the nation's unemployment problems should be attacked on a larger scale with "productive jobs providing goods and services which society regards as useful and desirable. The SST does not qualify on these grounds."

—Concluded that rather than promoting a favorable balance of payments by as much as $16 billion by 1990—as SST proponents have said—the plane's production in the United States could have an adverse balance of payments effect. The report said the $16 billion figure is based on assumed sales of 500 SSTs and on the further assumption that without an SST, U.S. airlines will import some 300 British-French SSTs—the Concorde.

The report called the assumptions "hard to accept."

—Said the Concorde, as a competitive threat, is still unproven in trans-Atlantic flights and even if development succeeds, "purchase is not likely to be a commercially attractive proposition for the airlines."

—Said sonic boom, airport noise and contamination of the atmosphere make development at this time premature.

Consumers Can Expect Utility Rate Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — World-wide shortages and skyrocketing prices for fuel oil have hit American utility companies so hard that the result could be across-the-board utility rate hikes for the nation's consumers, a high Nixon administration official says.

The crisis involves residual fuel oil, used principally by heavy industry and utility companies. Since the first of the year, the price of foreign-produced residual fuel oil has doubled and American fuel oil prices have increased by about 40 per cent.

Nearly two-thirds of the residual oil used in this country is imported.

"Utility companies are being hit hard," George A. Lincoln, director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, said in an interview.

Asked if this meant a possible rise in electricity rates, Lincoln said, "It certainly does."

"In most places, there's a rate adjustment tied to the cost of fuel so that when a utility company's fuel costs go up, electricity rates go up, too," Lincoln said.

"Some states have provisions that limit such rate increases to industry users of power, but this is the exception. In most places increases are provided for right across the board."

Lincoln would not predict when and by how much utility rates might be affected, but he held out little hope that much could be done to alleviate the crisis any time soon.

He was interviewed Tuesday following a press briefing at which he discussed the administration's decision earlier this week to scrap a proposed revision in the nation's oil import control program.

The revision would have substituted a system of tariffs on foreign petroleum products for the 11-year-old quota system. In abandoning the tariff proposal, the administration decided to concentrate on improving the quota system.

Residual fuel oil, however, is not affected by the import controls. Because the nation's needs could never be met from domestic supplies, all limitations on importing foreign residual fuel oils were lifted in 1966.

But the crisis in fuel oil supply has continued to grow.

Since the first of the year, the cost of foreign residual oil has risen from about $2 a barrel to $4 a barrel and American residual oil has gone from $2.50 a barrel to $3.60.

Coupled with the dramatic price rise there has been a drastic increase in demand, Lincoln said.

The shortages in fuel oil are attributed to a number of factors, including the Mideast political situation and growing demand worldwide.

One major cause for the increased demand, Lincoln said, was that residual fuel oil can be refined to a low sulphur content, a major requirement in many air pollution control programs.

"Whatever cost we're paying," he said, "should be chalked up to the cost of cleaning up our environment. If you're for clean air, then this is one of the prices you're going to pay. Nobody ever said it would be cheap to clean up our world, and we're just now finding out how really expensive it can and is going to be."

White House Roadblocks Education Appointment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The expected nomination of an outspoken, former big-city school superintendent as U.S. commissioner of education has met a White House roadblock after protests from organized labor.

The struggle within the Nixon administration over the nomination is proving the first major test of strength for Elliot L. Richardson, new secretary of health, education and welfare.

Administration sources confirmed that Richardson settled almost a month ago on Sidney P. Marland, former Pittsburgh school chief, for the sensitive No. 1 job in the office of education. Marland has a reputation as an innovative, strong administrator who speaks his mind freely.

The White House, however, has yet to approve Richardson's choice and send Marland's name to the Senate for confirmation.

Marland, already on the H.E.W. payroll as a consultant, is meeting almost daily with department officials and has used the undersecretary's office to interview candidates for top jobs in the education office.

Asked about the nomination to be education commissioner, he declined to comment.

Richardson's aides, while expressing confidence Marland will receive presidential approval, are beginning to show worry over the delay. They freely mention the striking parallel to last year's Knowles affair.

Robert H. Finch, then H.E.W. secretary, met an early defeat when he failed to gain presidential assent for his selection of Dr. John H. Knowles as assistant secretary for health.

The main stumbling block for Knowles was the American Medical Association. Marland's appears to be the strong opposition of the A.F.L.-C.I.O.

The labor federation's executive council called Marland an avowed enemy of collective bargaining for teachers" on Aug. 5 and expressed alarm and concern over published reports of his impending nomination.

The council accused Marland of publicly leading "an attack on unions for teachers" while he was Pittsburgh superintendent.

Marland said in an interview he merely told unions that state law forbade him to bargain exclusively with any one teacher organization.

White House conservatives have also raised questions about Marland's liberal views on school desegregation and federal aid to education, H.E.W. sources said.

Marland supported busing in Pittsburgh and wants more federal school dollars for disadvantaged children. He calls himself a political independent.

President Nixon has condemned busing of school children to achieve racial balance and favors reform of education aid programs before additional outlays are committed.

Marland's views appear to parallel those of James E. Allen Jr., who was fired as education commissioner June 10. Terrell Bell is now acting commissioner.

Agnew Returns To Asia To Pledge U. S. Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, in a new fight with senators who favor faster U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam, returns to Asia this weekend to reassure American allies the Nixon administration will honor its commitments.

The vice president's four-nation trip, covering some of the ground he visited eight months ago, is described by associates as a steady operation to reassure South Korea, Nationalist China, Thailand and South Vietnam of U.S. intentions to maintain a hand in Asia.

Reassurances are planned, one source said, because of the reduced U.S. role in Asia under the year-old Nixon Doctrine and the continuing assault by senators who favor even sharper limitations on the American commitment.

Agnew assailed these senators

Monday in words he described as "among the strongest since I took office." He charged the McGovern-Hatfield amendment to cut off funds for U.S. activities in Indochina is "a blueprint for the first defeat in the history of the United States—and for chaos and communism for the future of South Vietnam."

In part, Agnew's new trip will give the vice president an opportunity to tell pro-American Asian leaders, as he did last January, that Senate critics represent a minority viewpoint in the United States.

In South Korea, the only country on the itinerary which the vice president did not visit on his first trip, Agnew is expected to give assurances the United States will assist with the modernization of that nation's military force. There are plans to pull out some 20,000 of the 63,000 U.S. troops there.

In addition, South Koreans are understood to be concerned about the increasing protectionist sentiment in the United States, especially the drive to put curbs on imports of textiles. This could have even more impact in Korea than Japan, some sources said.

In Thailand, a major subject is expected to be negotiations over prospects for U.S. financial support for Thai aid to Cambodia.

In Formosa, import quotas and U.S. plans for relations with Communist China are on the agenda for what is expected to be the easiest stop of the trip.

Various subjects are to be discussed in South Vietnam, but aides say the trip has nothing to do with the South Vietnamese Senate elections scheduled Aug. 30.

A — A residence on East 11th is completely overgrown with weeds and brush and the owner refuses to maintain the property. Are there laws which can be enforced?—L.F.K.

A — Several city ordinances provide for a fine for the owner or forced removal of weeds from overgrown areas if they are not maintained. City sanitation director Arthur Bethke said he would check into the specific violation you mentioned.

Q — Isn't there a city ordinance requiring bicycles to shine their lights after dark? If so, why isn't it enforced?—G. H.

A — Police Chief William Miller said there is an ordinance requiring a front light and rear reflector to be in use on every bicycle after dark. The rule is difficult to enforce, however, since most bike riders are not of arrestable age. Also, parents are often uncooperative when a policeman does bring a youth in, according to Miller.

Q — Why are off-duty policemen permitted to wear their guns with civilian clothes while patronizing such places as restaurants, etc.—G.L.

A — One of the regulations of the Sedalia police department is that if an off-duty officer should have need of his gun and not have it with him, he will be subject to disciplinary action. Police Chief William Miller advises patrolmen to keep their weapons as inconspicuous as possible, however.

Fire Fighters Still Arguing

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Mayor A. J. Cervantes and Fire Fighters Local 73 continue to battle over pay demands.

Cervantes, citing figures he said were obtained from the Fire Department and the city's personnel department, claimed firemen spent only 17 hours each on an average fighting fires in 1969.

"This is less than 90 minutes per month, less time than most people spend going to and from work each day," the mayor commented.

Fire fighters Local President Joseph McMahon called Cervantes' figures "fictitious," however, noting firemen fought 13,600 fires and answered 13,000 other calls in 1969.

"This is indicative that we aren't sitting around the engine house," he maintained.

Voters go to the polls Sept. 15 to decide whether firemen's pay should be equal of police.

Cervantes claims pay parity would cost the city $1.7 million and place pay control in the hands of the legislature.

Reserve Deposits Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moving to the aid of the troubled housing industry and state and local governments, the Federal Reserve Board has reduced the percentage of large-scale time deposits banks must withhold from the lending market.

In orders Monday, the board also set a new reserve requirement for some of the money its affiliates raise by issuing commercial paper—short-term promissory notes—when the money is channeled into the bank to give it new funds for lending.

The board reduced to 5 per cent the portion of time deposits over $5 million commercial banks must set aside, usually by depositing it in regional Federal Reserve Banks. The requirement had been 6 per cent since 1966. The 3 per cent requirement for time deposits under $5 million was left unchanged.

The new requirement on commercial paper proceeds will be 5 per cent when the changes take effect Sept. 17.

The board's move on time deposit reserves was one step—not a very large one—toward easier money. It will tend to make a little more money available for lending, and the board made clear it wants state and local governments and housing to get most of the benefit.

However, it left unchanged the reserve requirements on checking account deposits. Those have ranged from 12½ to 17½ per cent since April 17, 1969, when they were raised one-half of 1 per cent.

The effect of the two changes, by board estimate, will be a $350 million increase in money available for loans. They apply to 5,800 of the nation's 13,000 banks—every nationally chartered bank and those state banks that choose to be members of the Federal Reserve System.

To Probe Security Of Buses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing recent accidents which resulted in several deaths and scores of injuries, Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe says the government has stepped up its inspections of interstate buses.

His announcement Monday said the program would involve at least 5,000 buses in the next 60 days, with special emphasis on charters.

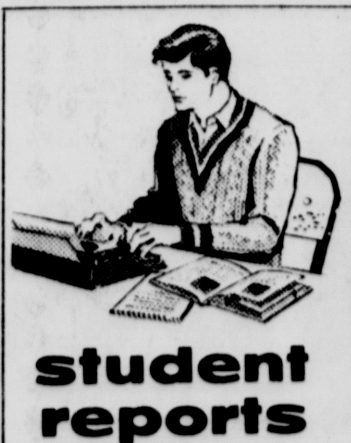

Early results show many buses already ordered to garages for repairs, he said.

The inspection drive is being concentrated at national and historic points of interest, since the tourist season is in full swing.

"This effort is designed to assure that buses in unsafe conditions are taken off the highways until all necessary repairs are made," Volpe said.

A charter bus Monday plunged down a mountainside at Hillsville, Va., killing one occupant and injuring 41. A group of young Chicago-area drum and bugle corps members were aboard.

Volpe pointed to another recent crash, at New Smithville, Pa., in which seven children were killed and 39 others injured.

Expendables 'Dehired'

Picture an executive, on the youngish side of middle age, coming home from work to his attractive home in the suburbs.

Just a bit gray at the temples, but attractively so, he arrives at his front door to be greeted by a well-groomed wife, who notices that his step is a little less sprightly than usual.

They embrace briefly, and he sheds his suit coat as she preceptively gets him a Martini or a cool beer if his taste runs to the more prosaic.

He says "Hi" to the children and relaxes, but not completely, on the couch. His wife checks the dinner once more, then sits nearby to chat a few moments.

"Well, honey," he smiles, "I've been outplaced."

"You have! That's wonderful, dear. I thought maybe something was wrong, but that sounds like a promotion."

"No, dear. It means I've been dehired."

"Dehired?"

"Yes. Which rhymes with fired."

Something like this little domestic scene has been played out often in recent months, as corporations, large and small, have trimmed executive staffs in adjusting to straitened economic circumstances. In May, the Labor Department reports, 17 of every 1,000 professional and managerial people were out of work. That is a 40 per cent increase over last year.

The terms "dehired" and "outplaced" are being used to soften the blow as professional executive placement firms assist corporations in locating new positions for men found to be expendable.

There are ego problems to contend with, of course. And often an executive's income cannot be matched in a new slot. So counseling and encouragement are needed.

Sometimes executives turn to European corporations, which need American management and production skills. Often what seemed to be a downturn in a career may become a real improvement both professionally and otherwise.

It is alleged that 50 years ago when Henry Ford wanted to let a man know he was fired, he did so by removing the furniture from that man's office while he was out to lunch. Which could be quite a shock.

Today, it's done more sympathetically. It takes time—two to four months for an executive under 45 years old who is making no more than $35,000, four to six months for older and higher-paid top people. But being "dehired" or "outplaced" is a hurdle that most executives overcome.

And, perhaps, it can impart a sense of something more in common with production-line employees, for whom possibilities of layoffs, cutbacks, depressions, seasonal unemployment and automated obsolescence remain facts of economic life.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Army Frowns on Symbol, Sandals

WASHINGTON — After an inquisition into his reading habits and the peace-symbol decal on his car, a dedicated young Army officer was denied an intelligence job for which he had been carefully trained.

Jack Anderson

Two months later, after the brass had looked into his style of dress and taken umbrage at his "granny glasses" and "sandals without socks," the 23-year-old lieutenant was also refused a promotion.

This disturbing case comes to light at a time when the Pentagon is insisting it has ended its practice of systematically gathering dossiers on dissenters.

Second Lt. Randolph J. Forrester first became aware of the Army's Big Brother suspicions of him when he was summoned before a special agent in military intelligence last April 1.

Forrester was then attending the Army's intelligence school at Fort Holabird, Md. He was interrogated about his reading habits, his attitude toward the Vietnam war and his opinions of the U.S. government.

"Have you ever read the Berkeley Barb?" the agent demanded. Once, Forrester replied, in the summer of 1968. Had he ever read the Los Angeles Free Press? Again, once.

The puzzled lieutenant then asked why the Army was so concerned about what he read. The special agent's reply: "The Department of the Army is concerned that you might believe and practice the ideas stated in such publications, ideas which may jeopardize your dependability and loyalty to the U.S. Army."

The relentless grilling continued. Photographs of Forrester's car were produced. Why the peace symbol? Why did he write letters protesting a Customs Bureau attempt to censor a shipment to the U.S. of paintings by famous European artists? What magazines did he subscribe to?

—Upholds Constitution—
At one point during the questioning, the lieutenant swore unequivocally that he believed in

Ninety-five Years Ago

We regard it of the highest importance that Main street should be opened out east to the Union Depot. To do this would necessitate the draining and filling of the pond near Hoberecht's mill. The convenience of our citizens demands this extension and there is no authority in city council or elsewhere to prohibit this extension of the street as it was originally laid out.

Forty Years Ago

The following young people made up a party entertained at the cabin of Mr. and Mrs. John McGrath: Maxine Pettijohn, Catherine Fay, Catherine English, Hazel Donaldson, Helen Sullivan, Vivian Valkenborg, Bob Leslie, Bob Thompson, John Joe McGrath, Alonzo Wilks, Billy Burton, Dick Van Dyne and James English.

Twenty-five Years Ago

The 43rd Missouri State Fair, the first held since 1942 because of the war, opened this morning (Sunday) for eight days and nights. The policy of no passes, everyone pays, will be carried out. An exception will be men and women in service uniform.

Thought for Today

"I did not listen to the voice of my teachers or incline my ear to my instructors." — Proverbs 5:13.

Justice is the insurance we have on our lives, and obedience is the premium we pay for it. — William Penn, Quaker founder of Pennsylvania.

THE GLOBAL VIEW

Nixon Scores Foreign Gains

By LEON DENNEN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA)

A balance sheet of President Nixon's policy of "negotiation instead of confrontation" will reveal substantial political dividends in some of the world's critical areas.

His pragmatic approach to international affairs, it is increasingly clear, has already set in motion the wheels of diplomacy not only in the Middle East but also in Europe and even in Southeast Asia.

American-Russian negotiations on the limitation of strategic nuclear weapons, though complex and slow, are also showing some signs of progress.

Seasoned diplomats in the United Nations are not anticipating a speedy miracle settlement of the Mideast crisis. But, in their view, the Nixon administration scored a notable advance in winning the agreement of Egypt, Jordan and Israel to negotiate a cease-fire.

The President thus avoided the danger of an East-West confrontation. He also deprived the Russians—for the immediate future at least—of an excuse for further expanding their military presence in the Middle East and the Mediterranean.

Even Nixon's critics concede that the new diplomatic turn in the Mideast is due in a large measure to the President's realistic and yet firm policy.

But it also reflects the victory of the "moderates" in the Kremlin who feared that the Mideast might become Russia's Vietnam. The Kremlin leaders also realized belatedly their policy of "controlled chaos" was only playing into the hands of the Arab extremists and terrorists who, encouraged, armed and financed by Red China, were a greater threat to their Egyptian client, President Nasser, than to Israel.

The Russians were indeed skating on thin ice after it became known that at least two Egyptian planes shot down by Israeli aircraft were flown by Soviet pilots.

With the Chinese again making threatening noises on Russia's border in the Far East, Soviet strategists have no stomach for becoming embroiled in a confrontation with the United States and NATO in the Middle East.

In Europe, the Nixon administration is encouraging, however cautiously, West German Chancellor Willy Brandt's negotiations with the Communists which have led to the draft nonaggression treaty with Moscow.

Here the pitfalls are only too obvious. No one in Washington has any illusions about the Kremlin's real aims.

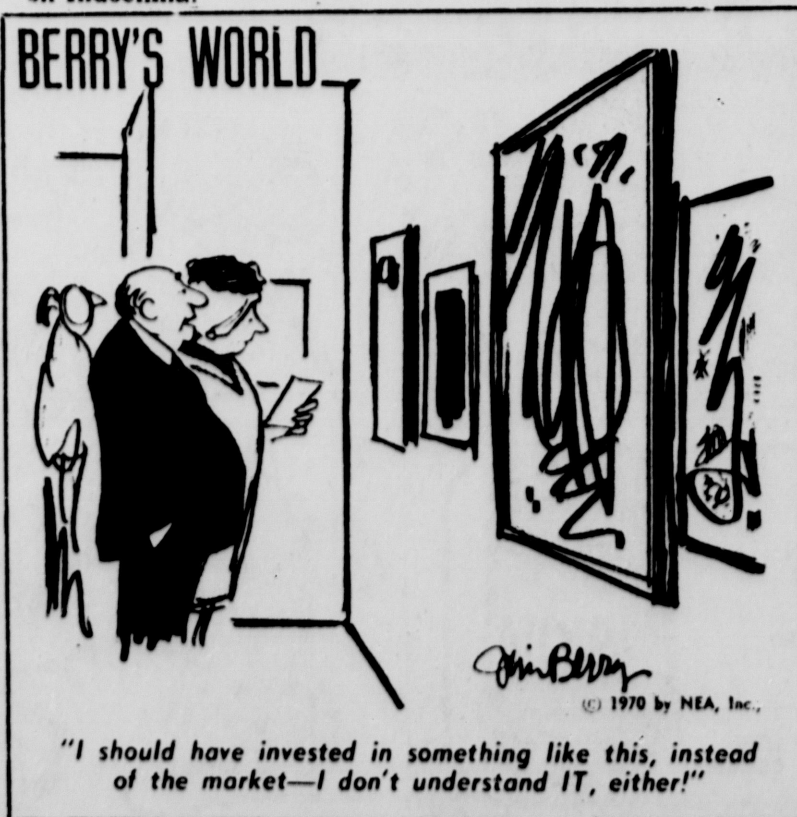

Moscow still regards "peaceful coexistence" between capitalist and Communist states as the most promising way of continuing the "revolutionary struggle" under modern conditions.

Thus Russia's plan for a European security system is seen as basically an attempt to turn West Germany into a pro-Soviet buffer state by undermining its economic independence and its defense capacity. This would go a long way in furthering Moscow's ambition to destroy NATO.

Such concern was voiced recently by a group of West German parliamentarians in a conversation with this writer. "Brandt is giving away German bargaining positions without getting anything in return from Moscow," a prominent member of the Bundestag warned.

Nevertheless, even American and German opponents of Brandt's "Ostpolitik" see a hopeful diplomatic breakthrough in the cold war in the mere fact that the Russians are willing to negotiate a treaty with the West Germans.

Even in Vietnam the Kremlin leaders seem to be having second thoughts. The Soviet leaders never relished the idea of Red China dominating Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos after the withdrawal of American troops from the area. To prevent a Chinese take-over, Moscow is now willing to reconsider the idea of an international conference on Indochina.

The race is not always to the strong, nor the battle to the swift but that's the way to bet. The best play does not always succeed but, if you can find the best line of play every time, you will be a winner in the long run.

The best line of play is the winner today. South didn't find it. His play was to lead a trump to dummy's king at trick two and try the heart finesse. West took his king and led a second trump. South cashed his ace of hearts, entered dummy by ruffing his six of clubs and led a third heart. If hearts had broken 3-3, he would have been able to discard a diamond, but East showed out and eventually South had to try the diamond finesse.

South's play had been a pretty good one. He had to lose two finesses and run up against a 4-2 break in hearts but there was a play that offered a better chance of success.

South should have played his ace of hearts at trick two and continued with the queen. It wouldn't make any difference what West did at this point. Suppose he led a trump. South would win with dummy's king and ruff a heart. Then he would get back to dummy by ruffing his small club with the ace of trumps, lead and ruff a fourth heart. This play would have set up dummy's last heart for a diamond discard and made the finesse unnecessary.

Why was this play better than the one tried by South? Because it would succeed against 3-3 or a 4-2 break in hearts. The play South tried would only succeed if hearts broke 3-3 or if the finesse worked.

The giant sculptures of Mt. Rushmore, S.D., form a truly impressive national monument. The World Almanac notes that the visages of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt are 60 feet high and visible for 60 miles. Lincoln's nose alone is longer than the entire face of Egypt's Sphinx and, if carved at full length, his stately figure would stand 465 feet tall.

Viet Cong Libs Don't Fool Around

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — A document written by the top women's rights advocate in the Viet Cong has been acquired by this reporter.

This strong-willed woman is a top member of the South Vietnam Liberation Army Military Affairs Party Committee and, some say, the single most important woman in the Communist underground.

Her name is Nguyen Thi Dinh.

The document is actually a military order (directive) to party committees and commanders "at all echelons."

In this directive, Madam Dinh minces no words: she bluntly directs that party committees and commanders throughout South Vietnam:

—"Boldly assign women to appropriate combat missions in (partial) replacement of the male sex."

—"Indoctrinate ... party members ... especially of the male sex, on the role and revolutionary capability of women ... Be resolute to dismiss the feudalistic and narrow-minded tendencies of disregarding women."

—"Pay more attention to the recruitment of female cadre for the party ..."

—"... organize separate caucuses for women once a month."

—"Train female cadre in every technical service."

—"Step up 'indoctrination on the revolutionary concept toward sex relations' (In the past, Madam Dinh says, this indoctrination 'was not carefully considered,' and as a result 'guidance on the relationship between male and female was not good. This gave way to several cases of illicit love and murder. A number of women due to the influence of the United States and (the South Vietnamese government) ... still displayed many signs which did not suit the Resistance ...') —"Stop disregarding, and begin to implement fully, all policies concerning the living and health conditions of women."

—"Begin promoting female cadres on their talents and capabilities."

Madam Dinh notes that there are approximately 4,000 female cadre working at various agencies of the (Viet Cong) military staff, the political staff and rear service staff of the Viet Cong, "not including an unspecified number of female cadre serving in assault youth groups and work sites."

In a special marginal note directed to the women themselves, Madam Dinh warns that their low estate is partly their own fault. It must be known, she says, "that the weak points of women are that they are credulous and cannot resist love ... This is why 'they are often not considered for various jobs and are slow in making progress.'"

In another marginal note she urges the women under her direction to "overcome their inferiority complexes" and become aware of their capabilities.

So much for the directive. There is no report yet on whether Madam Dinh's orders are being obeyed by Communist party males and Viet Cong military leaders in the south.

But she strikes at the right time. The growing scarcity of local men, and the increasing need for women to fill the Viet Cong party, political, economic, administrative and military posts, must serve as a strong assist for determined women aiming to achieve greater power unless, as Madam Dinh worries, they succumb to love and forget their revolutionary spirit.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Characteristics Of the Alcoholic

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — What are the characteristics of an alcoholic?

A — An alcoholic may show several of the following: Often loses time from work, neglects his family, has periods of great remorse about his drinking, gets into financial difficulties, turns to low companions in an inferior environment when drinking, drinks in the morning, drinks to escape from worry or responsibility, often drinks alone and is careless of his appearance.

Q — My husband, 59, has been a heavy weekend drinker for 30 years. He now complains that when he drinks his hands swell so badly he can't make a fist. Why is this?

A — This is not a common symptom of alcoholism. It suggests some deterioration of the heart and circulation and should be taken as a warning to find a new weekend hobby.

Q — How can one possibly avoid alcoholism if he takes a drink or two every day?

A — By making them small and allowing at least an hour between drinks.

Q — I have been giving my husband disulfiram (Antabuse) for several weeks but he is still drinking. How long does it take for these pills to work?

A — The initial course is one full tablet a day for two weeks, after which half a tablet is given. Since anyone who is taking this drug is made very sick by drinking alcohol, I doubt that your husband actually swallows his pills.

Q — What are the symptoms of liver damage caused by alcoholism? I am now an abstainer but am told that I have extensive liver damage. Will tests show whether there is any improvement. What treatment do you recommend?

A — The symptoms (not necessarily present in all cases) include jaundice, loss of weight, poor appetite, weakness and waterlogging. Serum bilirubin concentration, sulfobromophthalein excretion, plasma protein determination and alkaline phosphatase level are some of the liver function tests used. When treatment is started early enough improvement is the rule.

A high-protein, high-calorie diet — at least 100 grams of protein and 3,000 calories a day with supplemental vitamin B and C — should be taken. In the first few weeks fatigue should be avoided.

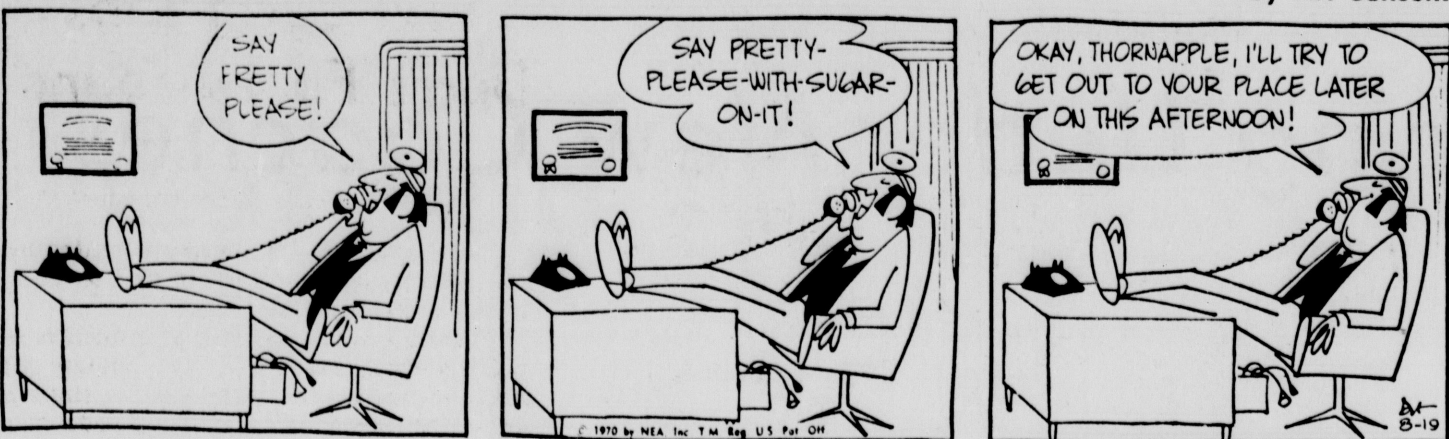

Guest Editorial

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS: Alarms. Diversions.

— Lazy people cause progress, someone once observed, by inventing machines to do their jobs for them. Now progress has taken another giant step forward: An alarm clock has been marketed with seven permanent settings, one for each day of the week—thus ending the drudgery of having to pull out that alarm pin every day.

We don't know what you'll do with the leisure time you'll be gaining from this, but we have an idea for ourself. We'll probably try to invent an alarm clock that turns itself right off and lets us go back to sleep.

Here Are Ways to Remove Static from Garments

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. C. E. S. wanted to reduce the static electricity in permanently pressed garments that are dried in the dryer. I learned the following through trial and error: Use fabric softener in the final rinse. Do not over-dry. If your dryer does not have a cool-down period, manually turn the heat off and let the clothes tumble in cool air. Use the timer on your stove to remind you not to let them dry too long. It helps to include an all-cotton item in the dryer. I add a towel that dries slower than the permanently pressed things. When making clothes, line Daeron things (such as whipped cream fabric) with all-cotton lining. This helps keep them from clinging. Small loads dry in 10-15 minutes plus an additional 5-10 minutes for the cool down. Always use medium heat.—MARY ANNE

DEAR POLLY—I used to be bothered with static electricity between my slip and other underthings. Nothing worked until I started to pin a small safety pin to the inside of my panties so the pin touched me and formed a "ground."—FLORENCE

DEAR POLLY—Many families would like to have a swimming pool of some kind but dread supervising and being responsible for the neighborhood children. Try our idea. We posted a sign, before the pool was filled, that said, "No swimming without permission AND a parent present." It has worked because the parents do not find the time.—JULIA

Polly's Problem

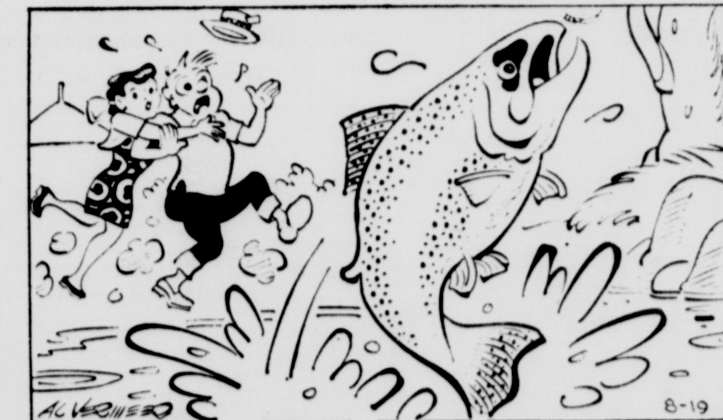

DEAR POLLY—How can I remove rust stains from a creamy white hand-washable Orlon acrylic pants suit? I washed it according to the instruction tag and it came out beautifully except for large rust stains on the cuffs, on the top and the button placket. There are only small stains on the pants. I first thought these stains were due to the metal buttons but dismissed that when I saw the stains on the pants with no buttons. I washed both pieces separately. I did not remove the buttons because the instructions did not so state. This was an expensive suit. I would appreciate some help. I have tried vinegar, lemon juice, baking soda and a spot remover but to no avail.—GLORIA

Clay Group Plans Fight

ATLANTA (AP) — A group hoping to promote a heavy-weight championship fight between Cassius Clay and Joe Frazier in Atlanta Oct. 26 planned to meet today in Philadelphia with Frazier's representatives, who still say they know nothing about the fight.

"My associate, Jesse Hill, and I are going up there to talk with Joe Frazier's people," State Sen. Leroy Johnson of the promoting group House of Sports Inc., said Tuesday.

"We are going to lend what helping hand we can in getting the contract signed," Johnson said. "We are hopeful of cementing all the plans for the fight here."

The manager of world heavy-weight champion Frazier, Yank Durham, has said he has had no communication from anyone on a proposed Atlanta fight.

"I haven't received anything in the mail and I am not interested in a fight with Clay," the Atlanta Constitution quoted Durham as saying. "I would not fight Clay on Oct. 26 or any other time until I have fulfilled my verbal agreement with (light heavyweight champion) Bob Foster."

The fight, licensed by the city, has stirred considerable controversy because of Clay's conviction for draft evasion.

Gov. Lester Maddox, who first said he approved of the fight, changed his stand after his original remarks came under criticism from political candidates. Maddox, barred by law from succeeding himself, is running for lieutenant governor in the September Democratic primary.

In a statement released Tuesday, Maddox said, "If Clay is ready to publicly proclaim his readiness to fight for his country, then now is the time for him to be heard. Until he does this, or the conviction against him is removed, the City of Atlanta should not permit the proposed fight."

The governor has no direct power over the fight since local ordinances regulate such exhibitions. Mayor Sam Massell has declined to take sides, saying that whether or not the fight can be staged is a legal matter.

To Honor Rolla At Chiefs Game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The University of Missouri-Rolla will be honored during the Sept. 12 Kansas City Chiefs - St. Louis Cardinals exhibition football game here, the Cardinals said Tuesday.

UMR's band will perform at halftime of the game in Busch Stadium. In addition, the school will be honored for 100 years of academic excellence. It was founded in 1870.

Lions Optimists On 1970 Season

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Lions are "the most enthusiastic I've seen them since the championship days," claims general manager Russ Thomas.

Enthusiasm may not be a guide to predicting the future, but this year's Lions have much more and appear strong candidates to capture the Central Division title of the National Football League.

A year ago that would have been a laughingly bold prediction, for in 1968 Detroit was last in the division with a 4-6-2 record. Last season the team's 9-4-1 mark was the fifth best in the 16-team NFL and the Lions finished second in their division behind powerful league champs Minnesota.

As it has been so many times in the past, defense is the key to the Lions' game. Only Minnesota and AFL-Super Bowl champion Kansas City allowed fewer points.

But only two teams in the NFL scored fewer points than Detroit!

"We're going to win, there's no question about it. We're to have a winning season," grinned coach Joe Schmidt without falling into the trap of predicting a championship.

Schmidt is in the fourth year of a five-year contract and during the first three seasons he has developed the team with numerous rookies. Many of them have come along fantastically and this year, may show the fruit of the buildup.

Only eight of the 26 regulars or near-regulars are 30 or older. Most are about 24.

The defense front four and linebackers are the oldest group. It is comprised of ends Joe Robb (33) and Larry Hand (30); tackles Jerry Rush (27) and Alex Karras (35); plus linebackers Paul Naumoff (25), Mike Lucci (30), and Wayne Walker (32).

Karras has been All Pro four times and Walker twice. Both are capable of doing it again but Karras must overcome a knee operation. Rush was bothered by a bleeding ulcer last season.

But the question lies with the offense, to be led by either veteran Bill Munson, or third-year man Greg Landry at quarterback. Munson was out six games at midseason last year with a broken hand but has an early nod over Landry, who made Detroit a winner while he was in.

Biggest offensive question is a running back. Can Mel Farr make a comeback after two knee operations? Can injury-prone Nick Eddy have a good year despite persistent knee problems? Can Steve Owens break the "Heisman Jinx" and be a star?

Still Has Problems

Namath Comes to Camp

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — The young boy jammed a yearbook and a felt pen into Joe Namath's hand, and over his autograph, the New York Jets' quarterback wrote one word: "Peace".

Nothing may be more symbolic of Joe Namath's plight—for peace is something Joe Namath wishes he had.

Joe Namath has long hair, earthy good looks and a $100,000-a-year contract. Joe Namath has a brown Jaguar to bring him to practice. Joe Namath has the idolatry of countless fans of both sexes and all ages.

But Joe Namath does not have peace.

And Joe Namath said as much Tuesday as he rejoined the Jets, bringing with him not only his admitted talent for completing a pass but all the problems that have plagued him during this summer of his greatest unhappiness.

Not necessarily in order of importance, the problems are: —Trouble with his knees that apparently present, at least in his own mind, enough problems to make him say: "I don't think I can play."

—Mental problems, possibly stemming from his knees but compounded by other factors, that prevent him from eating a meal or drinking a cup of coffee before a game and make him "wonder if it's worth it."

—"A business problem," defined only in those terms and a problem about which he would not elaborate.

Namath talked about all those problems in an unusual scene that took place outside the back door of the Jets' training room on the Hofstra University campus where Namath spoke to radio and television people with newspapermen barred.

On his arrival at camp, wearing striped bell bottoms with a blue shirt open at the neck, Namath had refused to talk to newspaper people because "Everything that's been written about me is a lie."

He began by explaining his absence, pointing out: "I was not in the right frame of mind mentally."

Then he talked about the final game of the 1969 season, a 13-6 playoff loss to Kansas City that eliminated the Jets from contention in the American Football League.

"That was a horrible experience—being humiliated like I felt we were because we scored six points," Namath explained. "It leaves a bad taste. I didn't know whether I wanted to do that again."

Scotch Foursome At Walnut Hills

The Walnut Hills Country Club will have a Scotch Foursome for members only Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

Entry fee is $1 per couple.

Joe Is Back

Pro football's controversial star quarterback Joe Namath tosses to teammates during the Jets' practice session in New York state Tuesday.

Namath ended his holdout and reported to the training camp 11 days and two exhibition games late.

Carrollton Racer Is Top Contender

A top contender for the coveted honor of being named Missouri's state champion supermodified driver is Tom Corbin of Carrollton, who in some eight years of racing has risen from the ranks of the Central Missouri Racing Association to run with some of the nation's best drivers.

Corbin, who will pilot a car jointly owned by himself and Don Green of Carrollton, has been in the forefront of sprint car competition for the past four seasons, including extensive campaigns under the banner of the International Motor Contest Association and an excursion into Eastern states with United States Auto Club drivers.

Corbin will be part of a field of more than 50 of the state's leading supermodified drivers, including the 1969 state champion, Russell Hibbard of Slater, and Torch Aleshire of Moberly, a three-time champion during the 1950s.

The initial round in the state championship series will be contested Saturday night, when the first five finishers in each of five 10-car heats will earn starting positions in the 50-lap state championship feature, slated under the arc lights on Friday, Aug. 28.

Non-money winners in the five heats Saturday night will go in a 25-lap feature that same night, with designation as the state junior champion their goal.

The modified championship races are part of a seven-race Missouri State Fair series which includes sprint cars on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 22, and in the Missouri Futurity Sunday afternoon Aug. 30. Late model stock cars also will be racing the first Sunday and last Saturday of the fair.

Carrollton Veteran

Tom Corbin of Carrollton, who began racing in Central Missouri Racing Association events in the early 1960's, has amassed competitive skills in running with some of the nation's leading sprint car associations and drivers and will be a top contender for the title of state modified stock car racing champion in a pair of title events slated Aug. 22 and Aug. 28 in one of the Missouri State Fair speed sport highlights.

Birds Fret About Skid

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Minnesota Twins know what a slump is all about and now Earl Weaver of Baltimore claims his club is in one.

There's one big difference, though. While the Twins recently dropped nine straight games, the high-flying Orioles continue to win.

Tuesday night, the Twins came up with some ninth inning heroics, getting a clutch two-run single off the bat of pinch-hitter Jim Holt to nip the New York Yankees 8-7, giving Minnesota its second straight win after their near-disastrous skid.

And the Orioles, now leading the Yanks by 10 games in the American League East, downed Milwaukee 3-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Jim Hardin and the hitting and fielding of Merv Rettenmund.

"We're on a winning streak during a slump," said Weaver, the skipper of the Orioles. "We haven't been hitting the ball at all lately, but we've won our last four."

It was also Baltimore's seventh triumph in their last nine starts. However, what Weaver says might be true. The hard-hitting Birds only stroked three hits off Brewers' loser Marty Pattin. But one of them was Rettenmund's 15th homer of the season, a solo clout in the fourth inning. The center fielder also saved Hardin's shutout with two catches in the fourth, grabbing a sinking drive by Mike Walton and going to the fence for Mike Hegan's belt.

In other games, California stayed on the Twins' heels, 4½ games behind the West leaders, with a 12-1 trouncing of Cleveland, Detroit clubbed Oakland 3-1, Boston clouted Chicago 8-4 and Kansas City ripped Washington 12-8.

Holt's soft liner to center off reliever Lindy McDaniel, snapped the Yankee's winning string at four games.

Rookie Danny Thompson opened the ninth with the Twins trailing 7-6 and dropped a bunt single. After a forceout, Tony Oliva doubled, putting two runners aboard. Then Holt, on a 2-2 pitch, batting for winning reliever Tom Hall, stroked his winning hit.

John Ellis had three hits, including a double and homer for the Yankees while Danny Catter had a two-run shot.

Clyde Wright, benefitting from a nine-run seventh inning, won his 17th game as the Angels unleashed a 16-hit attack. The Angels sent 14 men to the plate in the inning, ripping eight hits, with Jim Fregosi contributing two singles. Jim Spencer and Sandy Alomar had doubles.

Oakland fell six games behind Minnesota as Mickey Lolich of the Tigers hurled a five-hitter for Detroit's fourth straight triumph.

Dalton Jones had a seventh-inning homer.

The Red Sox scored six runs in the fifth inning to come from behind, then got one-hit relief pitching from Ken Brett over the last 4 1-3 innings against Chicago.

Mike Andrews and Reggie Smith led the Boston assault with three hits apiece.

Whisler Leading Odessa

ODESSA — The rains held off long enough to complete the time trials for both the Late Models and the Hobby Stocks, and to complete the 15 lap Hobby Stock feature, Saturday night at 1-70 Speedway, but would not hold off any longer as the biggest portion of racing evening was washed out.

In time trials, Don Conner of Kansas City, Kan., turned the half mile hi-banked asphalt track in 19:59 seconds, the third fastest time ever at 1-70 for a Late Model Stock Car. The record is 19:48, set by Ramo Stott of Keokuk, Iowa, in May of this year.

The Hobby Stock feature (the only rare of the wet evening), was captured for the second week in a row by Gene Bond of Wellsville, Kan. Daryl VandeVoorde, of Kansas City, finished second, followed by Kyle O'Brien of Kansas City, Kan.

1-70 Speedway Stock car racing will move from Saturday nights to Sunday afternoons beginning the afternoon of Aug. 30. Starting time for the races will be 2 p.m.

Vance Too Tough

Cards Rocked — Royals Win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — As far as the St. Louis Cardinals were concerned, young Sandy Vance's name might just as well have been "Dazzy" during the muggy heat in Busch Stadium Tuesday night.

Flashing a sizzling fast ball, the 23-year-old Los Angeles Dodger pitcher mowed down the first 10 Cardinals en route to a 7-2 triumph.

Vance's fifth victory in eight decisions came following a mid-season tour of duty with the Dodgers' farm club in Spokane. The air felt heavier Tuesday night, he said, but the fast ball defied the description.

Keeping most batters off balance, Vance permitted only five hits—one a booming double by Jose Cardenal that offered too little and came too late with two out in the ninth.

Ahead of that he had been touched for two hits in the fourth inning, one a single by Joe Torre that provided the Cardinals a brief 1-0 lead.

The Dodgers, however, teed off on Jerry Reuss an inning later and moved out or range with a four-run blitz in the sixth for a 5-1 lead.

St. Louis reached Vance for its only other tally in the bottom of the sixth, after which the Dodgers chased Reuss with a run in the seventh and added another in the eighth off Reggie Cleveland.

The Dodgers Wes Parker, hitting .327, got four safeties in four times at bat and Ted Sizemore had three hits.

The Dodgers have won six of eight games from the Cardinals this season.

The West Coast team's 15-hit barrage lifted their total to 29 for the two games in the current series and their run production to 37 for the year in five games at Busch Stadium.

Aside from Cardenal's double and Torre's single, the only other Cardinal hits were singles by Joe Hague, Julian Javier and Reuss.

Vance recorded four strikeouts and walked but two in completing his second game in 10 starts.

A victim of his pitching was Lou Brock, who went 0-for-4 in an attempt to extend his 15-game hitting streak.

The Kansas City Royals defeated the Washington Senators 12-8 in a scoring melee Tuesday night.

Bob Oliver's three-run homer in the seventh capped the Kansas City spree. Amos Otis had doubled and Ed Kirkpatrick was given an intentional walk to bring up Oliver.

Lee Maye belted a three-run homer in the bottom of the seventh for the Senators to make it 9-8 but the Royals scored twice in the eighth on RBI singles by Lou Piniella and Ed Kirkpatrick and added another run in the ninth.

Al Fitzmorris picked up his seventh victory against three defeats for Kansas City. Dick Bosman, 12-9, was tagged with the setback.

Kansas City is in Washington again tonight. Dick Drago, 6-12, is to pitch for the Royals against Joe Coleman, 6-8.

Los Angeles plays at St. Louis again under the lights with Alan Foster, 8-9, taking the hill for the Dodgers against the Cards' Steve Carlton, 6-16.

Podolak Leading Chiefs

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — After two preseason football games, who is the top pass receiver, who is No. 2 rusher for the Kansas City Chiefs?

Mike Garrett? Robert Holmes? Warren McVea? Or maybe a wide receiver?

No! It is Ed Podolak with 17 catches for 179 yards.

Podolak is a second-year man from Iowa, who sat out most of his rookie season with a pulled hamstring muscle. But the 6-foot-1, 200-pound running back isn't satisfied.

"I'm nowhere near as strong and as quick as I was," the 22-year-old Atlantic, Iowa, native said after the Chiefs' workout Tuesday in preparation for Saturday night's game against Cleveland in Memphis.

"With the other backs hurt and playing as much as I've been playing, I keep getting down physically instead of recuperating as I should."

But Podolak knows the other backs will return from injuries and he thinks it will help him.

"When you run outside the picture changes with every step you take. On one step a hole might appear; on the next step it might be filled.

"If you go inside and they come directly at you, the picture is static. An opening will stay there if you can get to it," he said.

Podolak discounts his pass receiving statistic. "That swing pass I've been catching, what we call a slip, is just a glorified lateral. It doesn't take a great deal of skill to catch it.

"Circle left or circle right, where you have to beat the linebacker—that's tougher," he said. "It takes more receiving ability. But that's just part of being a good athlete."

The Chiefs lost to Baltimore last Friday 17-3 with Tom Matte scoring a touchdown in the waning seconds.

"If I have an idol it's him," Podolak said of Matte. "He started like I did, as a quarterback in college. Matte has a great feel for running and I think he gives great effort."

"Those two qualities I think are underrated in running backs—that effort and that ability to follow your blockers."

Podolak, Kansas City's second draft choice in 1969, is looking forward to a good season.

"Last year, I was a rookie trying to make the team," he said. "This year I'm more relaxed. I save my concentrated effort for the game."

Maravich Thrilled By Game

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) — Pete Maravich strapped his pistols on once more—this time to play in a pro game—but Dave Cowens did most of the straight shooting.

Maravich, college basketball's all-time scoring king, said he was "thrilled" playing with the pros in the annual Maurice Stokes charity basketball game Tuesday night.

Maravich scored only 10 points, way below his college average, so Cowens took up the slack with 32 and led the Red Auerbachs over the Dolph Schayes 86-82 at Kutsher's Country Club.

The Pistol, however, wasn't to deny the crowd of 2,000 a look at his formidable passing talents. He drew "oohs" and "aahs" from the fans while firing the ball from illogical, off-balance positions.

Maravich wound up with 12 assists wearing an Atlanta Hawks uniform for the first time in a game.

While the former Louisiana State great was doing his passing thing, Cowens—Boston's first-round draft pick from Florida State—also pulled down 22 rebounds and blocked a half dozen shots.

LINE—Disolate. Left side wiped out by retirement of Billy Shaw, Stew Barber. Shaw'll really hurt. Both were all-leaguers one time or another. Still have Al Beriller at center, but he's hurt-prone, Joe O'Donnell at guard, Paul Costa (converted end) at tackle. Young Angelo Loukas steps in for Shaw. It's giant step. Rating—C+

LINE—Quite a bit of recasting here, too. Only Jim Dunaway, Ron McDole left from unit that used to be strongest in AFL. Fortunately, they're both bastion types. Bob Tatorek broke in last year and should be adequate, not spectacular, at tackle. Julian Nunamaker or Mike McBeth could fill out the front four, but the key talent is top draftee Al Cowlings, O.J.'s old buddy at USC. Rating—B

LINEBACKING—Harry Jacobs, now 33, seems to go on forever. He gets by on guile as middle man. Unpretentious but generally on the ball. The real energy comes from Mike Stratton, one of the tough ones in pro ball, and Paul Guidry, who's coming fast as a talent. Rating—B+

SECONDARY—Would be nice to know where they stand with George Sammes, longtime free safety who played out option. At this point, not counting on him. Robert James gets shot instead, alongside big John Pitts as strong safety. Corners well-protected by Butch Byrd, Booker Edgerson. Butch gets publicity; Booker may be steadier. Rating—B

KICKING—Bruce Afford is holdover placekicker. Marginal competence. Paul Maguire, longtime punter, getting some challenge from young Stefan Schroeder. Rating—B

American Conference: BUFFALO

PROSPECTUS — Hard to see how there's going to be much improvement over last year's 4-10 because some old leadership problem plagues them, and it has been aggravated by retirements. Will need super season by O. J. Simpson to make any headway.

OFFENSE

PASSING—Jack Kemp's off and running for Congress, and four guys are off and running for the job on field—James Harris, big but indecisive; Dan Darragh, still traumatically affected by rookie pounding; Virgil Carter, retrained from Bears, spunky but assertive and maybe best bet; Dennis Shaw, a mere rookie. Rating—C—

RECEIVING—Theoretically as good as you'd want, with Haven Moses a star type as wide threat, Billy Masters a plunger at right end and Marlin Briscoe (converted QB) or Bubba Thornton taking pressure off Moses. Problem is who's going to get ball to them. Rating—B

RUNNING—Don't let 'em kid you that O.J. is a bust. Give him some blocking and he'll be all-pro pronto. Got all the moves, retains zest and is bugged by unaccustomed losing. He'll emerge as leader, too. Has all the tools. Bill Enyard or Wayne Patrick have bulk to be adequate accomplices. Patrick shade the faster. But O.J. is the one who has got to carry ball. Rating—B+

LINE—Desolate. Left side wiped out by retirement of Billy Shaw, Stew Barber. Shaw'll really hurt. Both were all-leaguers one time or another. Riverfront Stadium was three-deep in Montreal catchers—but the Cincinnati Reds were the ones who needed more big gloves.

The injury-riddled Expos, using three catchers in their starting lineup, capitalized on four Cincinnati errors to score five unearned runs Tuesday night and hung on for a 7-4 victory that ended the Reds' winning string at three games.

Rookie left fielder Bernie Carbo committed the most damaging miscue when he muffed Coco Laboy's bases-loaded liner in the fifth inning, allowing three Montreal runs to score.

Expos Manager Gene Mauch started John Bateman behind the plate and part-time receivers Ron Brand and John Boccabella at shortstop and first base respectively.

Each contributed one hit, but it was the Reds' fielding lapses—by Carbo, third baseman Tony Perez, second baseman Tommy Helms and relief pitcher Wayne Granger—that made the difference.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh whipped San Francisco 6-2; the New York Mets slapped Houston 7-1; Atlanta nipped Philadelphia 3-2; Los Angeles beat St. Louis 7-2 and San Diego upended the Chicago Cubs 11-3.

Brand scored a tainted run in the second inning at Cincinnati, reaching first on Helms' error and scoring on Perez' wild throw. After Adolfo Phillips doubled home a run in the fifth against first-time starter Mel Behney, Carbo flubbed Laboy's two-out shot to give Expos' right-hander Steve Renko a 5-0 lead.

Renko then got into the juggling act, committing a pair of errors in the bottom of the fifth to help the Reds strike back for four runs. Another error, by Boccabella, and Bobby Tolan's two-run double kept the rally alive.

But Gary Sutherland doubled home a Montreal run in the sixth, then singled in the eighth and eventually scored the final marker on Granger's boot.

The Pirates retained their 2½-game lead in the East Division by snapping a four-game San Francisco victory string as Bob Robertson delivered three runs with a triple and his 19th homer. Steve Blass pitched seven strong innings for Pittsburgh and picked up his first triumph since July 4.

Gary Gentry, backed by a six-run Met explosion in the third, fired a four-hitter against Houston. Gentry also drilled a run-scoring double in the third as the Mets kayoted Larry Dierker with five straight hits before he could get a man out.

Clete Boyer lifted the Braves past Philadelphia with a ninth-inning leadoff homer off southpaw Chris Short, who had allowed only four hits through the eighth.

Stockton Favorite In Avco

SUTTON, MASS. (AP) — Ex-huberant Dave Stockton makes his first start as the new PGA champion Thursday as one of the favorites in the $16,000 Avco Golf Classic.

Stockton, who held off Arnold Palmer in last week's PGA Championship to move from the "who's he" class to membership in golf's who's who, has a precedent for being named the favorite.

He won the Cleveland and Milwaukee titles in consecutive appearances in 1968, his last previous victories before the PGA triumph.

The new champ will be making one of his last appearances. He said he planned to play only three more weeks, plus representing the United States in the World Cup competition in Argentina, before packing it in for the year.

Some other top candidates for the $32,000 first prize include multiple winners Billy Casper, Lee Trevino, Bruce Devlin and Dick Lotz.

The tournament and the long, hilly Pleasant Valley Country Club course offer particular challenges to Casper, the Masters Champion and the only three-time winner of the season.

He missed the cut for the final two rounds in this event last year, breaking a string of more than five years in which he had gone all the way in every start.

Trevino snapped a mild slump when he fired a brilliant, course record-matching 65 in the final round last week.

Hawaiians Seek End To Looting

LIHUE, Kauai, Hawaii (AP) — Hawaiian historians have called on the state to police commercial helicopter flights into remote areas of the islands to curb the looting of ancient temple sites.

Thelma Hadley, president of the Kauai Historical Society, said private helicopters have opened up previously inaccessible areas for desecration.

"Kauai's problem in respect to vandalism of historic sites is critical," Mrs. Hadley told a state Senate committee hearing Monday.

"All helicopter travel into state lands should be carefully policed."

Others testifying said that prices paid for Hawaiian artifacts on the mainland make it worthwhile for poachers to hire helicopters at $180 an hour because the trips normally take less than 15 minutes.

A common poi pounder, for example, can be sold for $300. Poi is a Hawaiian food made from taro root.

William K. Kikuchi, a graduate research associate at the University of Arizona, said he surveyed scores of historical sites on the island for Honolulu's Bishop Museum and found each "irreparably shifted and destroyed."

"The vandals had sifted the soil, looking specifically for larger artifacts such as poi pounders," Kikuchi said. "Ghoulis vandals had entered the burial caves and overturned the coffins."

He told the committee that artifacts are not as important to archaeologists as the setting in which they are found.

Kikuchi said the public must be educated on the importance of Hawaii's ancient temple sites.

"They are the only link with our past and that link makes Hawaii distinct from the rest of the 49 states," he said.

People In The News

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedienne Martha Raye will be leaving the film capital in October for another tour in Vietnam, her sixth, but for the most part she will be leaving her comedy routine in Hollywood.

Her five-month tour will be as Lt. Col. Martha Raye of the Army Nurse Corps Reserve.

She is a surgical nurse and as she said Monday: "There are no jokes in surgery."

"If there's a soldier sitting around with a guitar in the evening, I might sing a few songs," said Miss Raye, who serves with the Green Berets.

HONG KONG (AP) — Roman Catholic Bishop James Walsh, who was freed by the Red Chinese July 10 after 12 years in a Communist prison, leaves Sunday for an audience with Pope Paul VI in Rome.

A Catholic spokesman said Tuesday the 79-year-old Bishop Walsh will be accompanied to Rome by Sister Patricia Fitzmaurice, chief surgeon of Maryknoll Hospital where he has been recuperating since his release.

After spending a week in Rome, the spokesman said, Bishop Walsh plans to fly to Cumberland, Md., and a reunion with his five sisters and a brother.

PARIS (AP) — Former U.S. astronaut Frank Borman says he has no plans to seek a meeting with North Vietnamese peace negotiators here while on a presidential mission to obtain information about American prisoners of war held by Hanoi.

A spokesman for the Communist delegation said last week it would refuse any request for a meeting with Borman.

Borman said Monday he met "with no concrete success" in visits to Moscow and Stockholm. He is scheduled to meet with Ambassador David K. E. Bruce, who heads the U.S. negotiating team and French officials before moving on to Geneva Wednesday.

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — Gov. Frank Farris of South Dakota edged North Dakota Gov. William L. Guy by one stroke Monday with a 46-over-par 118 at the Governor's Cup golf match at the Fargo Country Club.

Both governors were beaten by band leader Lawrence Welk, 67, a native of Strasburg, N.D., who shot an 89 in the annual amateur event.

Farris, a Republican, displayed a slice while Guy, a Democrat, hit to the left. After a brief debate, both concluded their drives had no political significance.

New Lake Development

This is an artist's rendering of a members-only lodge to be built at Land of the Fifth Season, a new private recreation community being built on the Lake of the Ozarks near Horseshoe Bend. The lodge, swimming pool and private beach shown here are part of a $2.5 million sports core complex which will include a 18-hole golf course, swim and tennis club, plus 30 boat launching sites. The project, which covers 7,200 acres, features individual homesites ranging in size from 15,000 square feet up to two full acres.

Your Veteran Benefits

Home Loans Are Guaranteed

IMPORTANT NOTE: The term "Vietnam veteran" as used in this series refers to any veteran who had active duty in the "Vietnam era" which began Aug. 5, 1964. Veterans with active duty during this period are eligible for the Vietnam benefits outlined, even if they saw no duty in Vietnam.

By RAY CROMLEY
Enterprise Publications
Most Vietnam and other post-Korea veterans are eligible for home loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. Many Korea veterans are still eligible if they haven't already borrowed for such purposes and so are most unmarried widows of Vietnam and Korea and post-Korea veterans who died of service-connected disabilities.

As a veteran you may use a "VA loan" to buy, build or improve a home you intend to live in.

A loan for alterations, repairs or improvements to a veteran's home may be guaranteed by the VA if it covers repairs "necessary for the protection of the property" or if it will "substantially improve" the livability or utility of the home.

You must make your own loan arrangements through a bank, building and loan association, mortgage loan company or other usual lending channels. You must certify that you intend to occupy the property as your home.

The lender making a GI home loan is guaranteed against loss up to 60 per cent of the loan, with a maximum guarantee of $12,500.

You may extend repayments on a GI home loan as long as 30 years. The down payment and the length of repayment period are to be agreed on between you and the lender.

The interest rate on VA-guaranteed loans may not exceed 8½ per cent. The rate on new loans may change from time to time. In addition most post-Korea and Vietnam veteran borrowers are liable for a one-time charge not greater than one half of one per cent of the loan.

In some parts of the country, usually rural areas, when private capital for VA-guaranteed loans is not available, the VA may make direct loans up to $21,000. This maximum may be increased to $25,000 in areas where cost levels so require. However, no direct loans will be made after January 31, 1975.

On a new home on which a GI loan is made, the builder is required to give the veteran purchaser a one-year warranty that the home has been constructed in substantial conformity with VA-approved plans and specifications.

Many veterans are eligible for business or farm loans. The VA will guarantee private loans to Korea veterans for buying, improving or expanding legitimate business ventures.

Though post Korea and Vietnam veterans are not yet eligible for business loans, men now leaving service who want to set up their own businesses are entitled to priority aid from the Small Business Administration. There are SBA Veterans Affairs Officers in the agency's 75 field offices.

If you are a Vietnam veteran you are eligible for a VA guaranteed farm loan. It is likely you are still eligible if you served in Korea or in the post-Korea period.

You may extend repayment of a GI farm realty loan for as long as 40 years, providing you can find an agreeable lender.

The American Wood Council says that when shopping for a new home the housewife should stand in the middle of the kitchen and visualize the family traffic flow. Are the appliances, sink and range conveniently located? Will family helpers get in each other's way? If these questions are answered, she will have a better basis of deciding about the home.

Man Carving Road From Wilderness

STOFDORP, South Africa (AP)—Giant earthmoving machines are carving a 127-mile railroad out of the virgin wilderness where Zulu warrior chieftain Chaka once reigned supreme.

A self-contained village with its own airstrip has sprung up in four months amid the heat and dust of the remote Zululand countryside 40 miles inland from Empangeni, the nearest town of any size. Italian-born construction boss Piero Mattiotta rules as self-styled mayor over the hamlet he created and named Stofdorp—African for "dust village."

Stofdorp exists because Mattiotta won $2.1 million government contract for a five-mile slice of the longest railroad to be built in South Africa this century. It will link coastal Richard's Bay with Vryheid in the northern Natal Province interior at an estimated cost of $112 million, opening up Zululand to industrial and commercial development. Government planners believe tiny Richard's Bay eventually will outgrow the Indian Ocean harbor of Durban, 100 miles south, and become South Africa's biggest port.

Mattiotta's share of the project is relatively small but it is a tough job. His 10 white and 200 African workers must blast more than a million cubic yards of rock and dirt out of the rugged countryside and build three viaducts, a huge culvert and a station at a spot called Ulundi. They started four months ago and have 14 months more to finish the job.

Mattiotta is confident they will make it. He is a likeable extrovert with a big booming voice and an infectious laugh. He never stops praising his men and machines.

"They get nothing but the best," he says. "The best food and every modern convenience such as fridges and stoves."

When they need a haircut he has them flown to Empangeni in his personal plane, a craft he bought to speed delivery of essential spares and supplies for the job. The plane also enables the men to take a break in Durban now and then when bush boredom sets in.

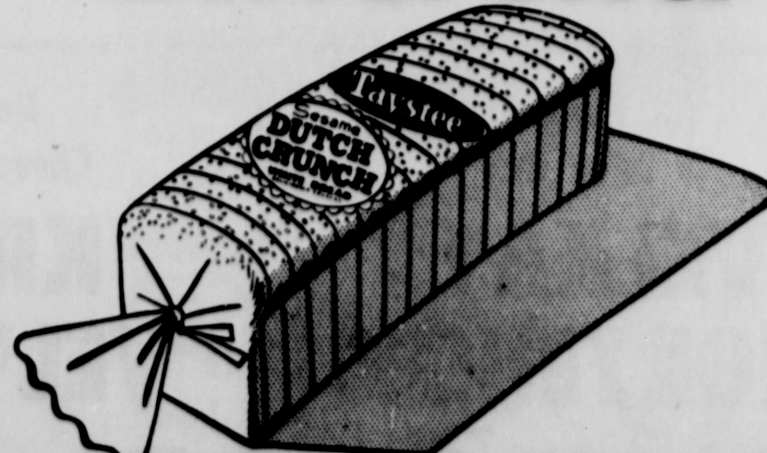

Mattiotta laid out Stofdorp for maximum self-sufficiency and comfort. The village supplies its own water and electricity and has abundant stocks of everything it needs for survival, besides piles of machinery and equipment spares.

Memories Aren't Worth Their Weight in Money

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—If you had a million memories and could sell them for a dollar each, you'd be a millionaire.

But who would part with a wonderful memory for a measly dollar bill? Good memories are priceless—and, anyway, it is more fun to share them than try to put them on the auction block.

Perhaps you don't have a million memories yet. But you've got a pretty good stock if you can look back and remember when—

Bluebirds were so plentiful you could see one almost every day in summer.

A good cook would rather hear her pies or preserves praised than her character. After all, nobody would dare say a word against her character.

There was some perturbation throughout the country when word got around that one of President Woodrow Wilson's favorite sports was tennis. Tennis? Wasn't that a game played between sissies and young ladies?

The old-fashioned icebox had room for only about a fifth of the goodies a modern refrigerator or freezer holds.

Bedbugs were so common in poor neighborhoods that it wasn't so much a question of whether but when a household would be infested by them.

A girl didn't know whether to be pleased or insulted if you told her she looked like Theda Bara, the famous movie vamp.

We were all so young and innocent that a fellow could become the life of a cocktail party simply by putting a lampshade on his head.

Adolf Hitler was painting landscapes—before he learned the art of destroying them.

People were still so friendly that if you got an attack of hiccups on a street car at least 10 strangers among the passengers would volunteer a helpful suggestion on the best way to cure them.

Airplanes were so much of a novelty that lots of folks rode out to the airport every Sunday in hopes of seeing one fall.

Grandma laid down the law to grandpa by informing him that he could either keep his beard or go on chewing tobacco—but he couldn't do both.

You could keep a pet dog from birth until death and never spend more than $2 cash on it for a collar with a brass nameplate.

Every telegram had ten words, and the tenth word always was "love."

Those were the days—remember?

CATHOLIC ORDER SPLITS IN DUBLIN

DUBLIN (AP)—The Anglo-Irish province of the Salesians, a Roman Catholic order, has been divided into separate English and Irish provinces. The first English provincial is the Rev. George Williams, S.D.B., and the Irish provincial is the Rev. Michael Egan, S.D.B. St. John Bosco sent the first members of the society to England in 1887 and the first Irish house was opened at Pallaskenry, County Limerick, in 1919.

Women: From Suffrage To Status

By Alison Goddard

Even though the advertisement assures women they have "come a long way," the feminists insist their sex is just taking its first baby steps toward equality.

So — on Aug. 26 they plan a day of protest. That date is special because it marks the 50th anniversary of the ratification of the Constitutional amendment guaranteeing women the right to vote. Earlier feminists, the suffragettes, fought for this.

Their modern successors range from the militant groups (WITCH, SCUM and others) to the more conservative NOW, organized originally by author Mrs. Betty Friedan. She became high priestess of the movement with the publication in 1963 of her best-seller, "The Feminine Mystique," an indictment of the traditional image of the American housewife.

Unfortunately, the image of the feminist cause has been distorted somewhat by the anti-family, anti-men and anti-bra adherents. But the movement is picking up both momentum and converts daily among middle-class, middle-aged suburban housewives.

Aims

Essentially, the feminists seek social, political, economic and domestic equality. They hope to achieve this with the repeal of abortion laws, establishment of day-care centers for women who choose to combine marriage and a career (almost 11-million women with children under 18 are working mothers), a sharing of parental and domestic duties, and an end to laws that discriminate against women. These range from "protective" laws in many states that effectively exclude women from better jobs and higher pay to laws that deny women independent credit or exclude them from obtaining a mortgage to purchase a house. In some states husbands can sue for divorce if the wife fails to keep the house clean; in one state a woman's clothes legally belong to her husband.

Changing Roles

Both the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which prohibits discrimination in employment on the basis of sex, and the civil rights protest movement helped boom the feminist cause. Also important are the nearly 30-million women now in the labor market, the majority in relatively low-paying jobs.

American women represent 51 per cent of the population. By the year 2000, according to experts, they will be in an even greater percentage, particularly among senior citizens. In their grandmothers' generation, the average woman's life ended with her reproductive capacity. But now women live well beyond the menopause, with a life expectancy of over 74 years.

Understandably, the longer life span can bring changes in the health, well-being and sex life of women. For instance, many menopausal problems have been traced to hormonal imbalance because at menopause the female body's production of estrogen declines.

FEMINISM

This is the first of a series of five articles exploring the current feminist movement and the changes it may bring to today's women. Topics to be covered include feminism, careers, motherhood, health and liberation.

But it is now possible to relieve menopausal symptoms by replacing the estrogen through medication.

Tomorrow's World

The majority of mature women, according to reports, are hostile to the feminists. Many tend to view this movement as another demand for change in a society that has already changed too much. Along with the changes in family life are others in institutions that once helped strengthen the family: religion, school, law and government. Added to these are the revolts of the young, typified by the hippie cult, the drug scene, the sexual revolution, campus unrest, nudity in fashions and pornography in mass entertainment.

But each victory the feminists win will change the options, if not the lives of all women. Richard E. Farson, a California psychologist, has said: "...when women revolt, all of us will change."

Versatile Corduroy Good Bet

NEW YORK — (NEA) —

Corduroy, like all things natural and spirited, is wrapping up fashion in the most smashing ways.

Very much a part of the new fashion proportion corduroy in its velvety no-rib or wide-rib construction has the body to hold its own for the new longer coats and skirts.

In the most challenging fashion season ever, the contemporary silhouette goes in many directions. A coordinating of tunics and pants, midis over pants, midskirts with skinny tops, battle jackets with slacks or skirts and midcoats in every style imaginable — coachman, trench or softly wrapped.

Lines are clear, defined, yet feminine looking, waists are belted, sashed, pulled in every which way. Tunics flow over pants, but these are now mostly belted and come in close over the hip. Skirts look best in the A-line, pants look best straight, hanging from the hip.

The newest pants shapes are the gaucho and the knicker. The gaucho moves like a skirt, lives like a pant. It's great in sueded, ribless corduroy. A vest top looks good with the gaucho, and high laced boots are almost a must accessory.

Knickers are definitely a new proportion and look for street wear. They can be smartly "cited" worn with a blazer jacket and ascot shirt and accessorized with opaque, textured hose and a neat brogue shoe in shiny leather. Knickers are especially smart in corduroy. In fashion colors and soft wide wales, they are a far fashions will have to be carefully considered for the individual shape and just as carefully accessorized but what should evolve is a new look of refinement and sophistication.

Coat Scene in Corduroy

Riots Worse For Women Says Resident of Ghetto

EDITORS NOTE: The following is one woman's account of three days of rioting that devastated the Negro area of Asbury Park, N.J., on July 5th, 6th and 7th. Negroes make up about one-third of the year-round inhabitants of this New Jersey shore community, whose populace swells from under 18,000 to between 100,000 and 125,000 during the summer.

The rioting, basically confined to one seven-block stretch of stores, was started by young blacks in a community with years-long resentment about unemployment, bad housing and claimed inadequate police protection.

State police were called in when the rioting got out of hand and a curfew was imposed. The aftermath left hundreds homeless, 165 injured, 167 arrested, and an estimated $3 million in property damage.

By PRUCIA BUSCELL
Asbury Park Press Writer

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — Mrs. Mary Hamilton cuddled her 18-month-old daughter in her lap and stared out the bedroom window while police cars whizzed through the silent, littered street.

"I'd like to offer you something to eat," she told a visitor, but I don't have much food here now. I wish I had some milk for the baby, but a baby can drink tea."

Mrs. Hamilton, a pretty, soft-spoken woman of 25, lives with her husband and child in one of the grimly functional brick buildings that are part of a project in this city's Negro ghetto. She lives one block from Springwood Avenue, the area's main shopping street which was devastated by four days of rioting.

These days she moves around with difficulty on one crutch. A screw came loose on the other, and it's no longer usable.

She's had trouble walking since little Shannon was born, she explains. "They thought it was just arthritis, but they found it was sickle cell anemia. My hip bones just rotted away and I had two operations. My daughter has it too."

Mrs. Hamilton says she doesn't need the medicine anymore, but that her daughter does.

"There's just no way I can get it for her. If I had a telephone," she says, referring to the fact that the area's phones were dead, "I'd call for help if anything happened. But I guess she'll be all right for one more day. Even if my husband went to the drugstore, I'd worry that he'd get arrested trying to get through the police lines."

For four days, she continues, she's worried about her husband, who works and goes to school at nearby Monmouth college. But in a riot like this, she adds with a sigh, it's always worse for the women.

"We have to sit here and wait and be scared. We worry about whether they'll get arrested or shot."

Her husband, she says, was arrested on the first day of the riot, when he left his mother's home to search for his younger brother and sister who'd wandered out to see what was going on in the streets.

"He borrowed a neighbor's car, and it had contraband in the trunk," she said. "The police stopped him and made a search. They beat him in the stomach and robbed $55 from him. It was just about the last of the welfare check."

His mother, Mrs. Shirley Hamilton, made three trips between Asbury Park and Freehold, the county seat, before her son was finally arraigned and released on $1,000 bail. He'd been charged with possessing stolen property and violating curfew. The Hamiltons are bitter. Mrs. Shirley Hamilton says local police first told her the bail would be $100, then later $500. But when she got to Freehold she was told she'd have to get a bondsman for $1,000 bail.

Mrs. Mary Hamilton peered out the window into the community still sealed off by police.

"Shopping is a woman's work," she said. "I hate to ask my husband to do it. I don't know what I'll do now."

She used to shop in stores along Springwood Avenue. Now that the stores have been destroyed, she'll have to pay for cabs to shop downtown or to depend on friends and relatives.

She talked about the laundry — the laundry that she and other area residents haven't been able to do for days because the laundromats are gone.

"It really piles up when you have a baby," she said, apologizing for the untidy apartment. "I get a woman to come and help me, but she hasn't come this week. She's black, but she's scared to come into the area. I don't blame her."

For Mrs. Hamilton the fear began Monday, the first day of the riot, when she saw a group of kids tearing through the yard, scaling the project fence, police in pursuit.

"I went to my bedroom window to see what was going on. Some kids were trying to overturn a car with some whites in it."

"At the time, I kept hoping that no one would get hurt," she said, "but after what I've seen, I wouldn't shed a tear if every one of those troopers got it. They were taunting people, calling them nigger."

"They tried to make a girl climb the fence, and when she wouldn't, they shouted and

Suggest Same Acreage For Crops Next Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department recommends growers of 10 major winter crop vegetables and potatoes plant the same total acreage for 1971 as they did last year.

The guidelines suggested by the government, designed to help growers plan production so that supplies will balance estimated demand, call for 235,800 planted acres, but with several variations from last year within the total.

The recommendations are unchanged for snap beans, carrots, celery, sweet corn, escarole and spinach, and for lettuce acreage in Florida and Texas.

A 5 per cent lettuce acreage reduction is suggested for Arizona and California. Recommended acreage increases include 5 per cent for cabbage, 15 per cent for green peppers and 5 per cent for tomatoes.

With normal yields from the suggested acreages for 1971, the government estimates a winter harvest for the 10 vegetables totaling 37.2 million hundred-weight, or 5 per cent more than in 1970.

The total acreage suggested for 1971 winter potatoes is 19,500 acres, which with average yields would lift output moderately above that of last winter.

Fresh winter vegetable produce in 1970 was restricted by bad weather. Particularly hard hit by an early January freeze and excessive rainfall were Florida crops of sweet corn, green peppers and tomatoes. This shortage was offset partially by increased imports.

The government recommendations were based on expectations of a slight increase in total population and some rise in demand due to gains in disposable income of consumers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cranberry crop of 1.8 million barrels is forecast for the current year. This would be 3 per cent larger than 1969 output and 28 per cent above that of two years ago.

"ACTORS' CHURCH" GETS NEW PRIEST

LONDON (AP) — The Rev. John Hester, 41, rector of St. Anne's, Soho, has been appointed priest-in-charge of St. Paul's Covent Garden, known as the "actors' church." He will combine this with his duties as a chaplain of the Actors' Church Union.

Father Hester, who has compared his Soho parish with Las Vegas, had no church during his six years there. St. Anne's was blitzed in World War II and only its tower remains standing.

Landon Says Nixon Is Dropping Containment

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon has embarked on a new foreign policy course of disengagement from the containment of communism policies of his predecessors. Alf M. Landon said today.

Landon, former governor of Kansas and 1936 Republican presidential nominee, presented an analysis of what he believes is the administration's new foreign policy course in a television appearance.

"It seems to me," said Landon, who at 82 maintains a close study of national and international affairs, "we are looking at the formulation of a tremendous and vital change in our entire foreign policy.

"When you put it all together, it means a gradual, calm and firm disengagement from the containment of communism policies of Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson without returning to the smug isolationism of Coolidge, Hoover and Franklin Roosevelt in the 1920s and 1930s."

Landon made his remarks on the program "President's Corner" with the host Dr. John Henderson, president of Washburn University. Henderson has been mentioned for the post of assistant secretary of education in the Nixon administration.

The program was taped for airing tonight on Kansas Educational Television stations.

Landon cited U.S. troop cuts in Vietnam and Korea, and said troop reductions are likely soon in West Germany. He also pointed out that Nixon is returning Okinawa to Japan next year.

"While President Nixon at Guam was really abandoning President Johnson's assumption of the guardianship of all Asia at the Manila Conference in October 1966, he also is abandoning our policy since World War II of trying to reform the world en masse in our own image. That new policy is as applicable to Western Europe and the western hemisphere as it is to Asia and Africa.

"It takes time and patience," he said of the policy changes. "Any president of a country the size, influence and affluence of the United States is bound in some degree to the policies of his predecessors. He cannot reverse them overnight."

He believes Nixon has accepted Russia's growing influence in the Middle East, and said this has led to a "favorable start" toward working out a solution there.

Landon also cited the West German - Russian non-aggression treaty, East Germany's overtures for United Nations membership and resumption of diplomatic relations between the Vatican and Yugoslavia as encouraging signs that the world situation is stabilizing.

"His (Nixon's) policies are not based on the old concept of monopolistic special privilege in spheres of influence or of a unilateral balance of power," Landon said. "They are not isolationism or 'Fortress America' or nebulous."

"They are a slow and firm development, without blare of bugles, bluster or brinkmanship, of disengagement from containment policies."

"I think that leaves the United States in its rightful and sound position of speaking softly but carrying a big stick when necessary for world peace, recognizing the legitimate and enduring national interests of other peoples.

"These policies are designed to relieve us of the incredible drain on our material, mental and spiritual resources by attempting to police the world, which have disunited us at home without any compensating advantages."

Shoe Plant Closings Trim Jobs

The popularity of imported shoes has indirectly put hundreds of Central Missourians out of work as domestic shoe companies have cut back their operations.

In recent weeks the Town & Country shoe factory in Warrensburg and International Shoes, Inc., in Sweet Springs have shut down, with nearly 400 workers released.

Cyril Hanrahan, former superintendent of the defunct Warrensburg Town & Country plant, said that imported shoes have taken away about 40 per cent of the domestic shoe market from U.S. producers. The outlook for the future is not bright either, according to Hanrahan, who predicted the trend to imported shoes would not subside soon.

The shutdown of the factory in Sweet Springs was International's ninth closing in Missouri in the past three years. Approximately 275 International workers will be out of work from that plant.

The Town & Country Factory at Slater has been reduced to a service facility, employing just 27 persons, and is scheduled to be phased out completely, according to an official source at the Sedalia factory.

The Sedalia plant is currently employing 475 persons, slightly below a full crew but will benefit from the Slater and Warrensburg closings by taking over orders that those plants would normally fill thus increasing their production. Also, 35 additional workers have been hired from the Warrensburg plant.

A similar situation exists at the International plant in Marshall. R. C. Stanfield, plant superintendent, said production was going down until the Sweet Springs plant closed.

"That shutdown has taken up the slack here. We have a normal working force of 500 to 550 men and anticipate no cutback," Stanfield reported.

Officials at both International and Town & Country blamed the current popularity of imported shoes for the production cutbacks, with the smallest plants feeling the pinch worst of all.

One area that the imported shoes haven't hurt yet is children's shoes. The Weber Shoe Co. of Tipton employs 300 people, and according to general manager John Dickson business is great.

"Eight months into our financial year we stand 42 per cent ahead in production of shoes over last year's production," Dickson said.

imports would make a large dent in the children's shoes market.

Create New Minority Job Bank

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal agency has created a job bank to place qualified Mexican-Americans and other Spanish-speaking persons in government positions.

Mexican-Americans in top civil-service grades between 15 and 18 number little more than 1 per cent, the agency says, compared with 5.3 per cent for blacks.

The Cabinet Committee for Opportunity of the Spanish-surnamed adds only 2.8 per cent of all government employees are Mexican-Americans. Most work in lower echelons.

In its initial five months, only 5 to 7 per cent of the estimated 500 applicants on file have gotten jobs.

"What's been lacking has been a commitment on the part of the agencies," said Merced Hernandez, a Texan with 14 years' experience in directing personnel operations within the government.

At weekly meetings with placement people from agencies throughout the government, he finds out about current or upcoming vacancies.

He is trying to persuade agencies to call him and ask for recommendations of Spanish-surnamed specialists.

When he learns of an opening, and has people qualified for it, he may send up to four applicants to be considered. The cabinet committee itself doesn't formally endorse an applicant, he said, but tries to match persons with openings.

Some persons have tried and failed to get positions for which their training and experience qualified them, he said. Others aren't aware of where they should market their skills.

Hernandez said some applicants have passed the federal entrance exams and have a rating.

But he said one-third of the people currently in professional positions in the government didn't come in by passing the difficult career entrance exams. Instead they worked at lower levels and were promoted or had compensatory training, he explained.

With the right kind of know-how, he said, Mexican-Americans can do the same thing.

Hernandez and committee director Martin Castillo also are trying other tactics to bring more Spanish-surnamed people into jobs.

Castillo suggested to the Federal Aviation Administration, for example, that Spanish-speaking air traffic controllers might be a bonus in international ports. Castillo said the controllers often converse with pilots from Spain and South American nations whose English is shaky.

Hernandez said emphasis also is placed on persuading federal job recruiters to stop at colleges which enroll sizable numbers of the Mexican-Americans.

Ferry in Return

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It was back to the bus today for users of the first commuter ferry between San Francisco and Sausalito in 32 years.

The Golden Gate Bridge District, which put the ferries out of business during the 30s, inaugurated the service Monday with its new passenger vessel, the Golden Gate, to reduce traffic volume across the bridge.

Late Monday the Golden Gate's starboard engine failed after she left San Francisco for Sausalito at 5:35 p.m. She limped back to her slip and her passengers boarded buses, as usual.

Officials said service will be suspended for several days for repairs.

Belfast Deluge Halts Protests

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Nineteen hours of torrential rain and Belfast's worst flood in 30 years brought a weekend halt to Catholic-Protestant riots and changed British troops from enemies to heroes, at least temporarily.

Rescue operations replaced street battles as hundreds of families were evacuated from their homes. More than 1,000 British troops laid down their guns to toil for hours in the swirling waters.

No casualties were reported, but damage estimates ran as high as $2.5 million. The Catholic Falls Road district was hardest hit.

As the cleanup got under way today, both Protestants and Roman Catholics praised the soldiers who the previous weekend were the targets of bricks, bottles and such epithets as "Gestapo swine."

Outside Belfast, high water cut major roads and isolated several villages. Soldiers rescued trapped families in Strabane and Londonderry, and an army boat saved 50 sheep from a flood near the River Foyle.

Erwin Wants Women Protected Two Ways

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Erwin Jr., who says he wants to give women the best of both worlds, is leading an attack against the House version of a constitutional amendment to guarantee women equal rights with men.

The North Carolina Democrat, considered one of the Senate experts on the Constitution, has no quarrel with the portion of the House-passed amendment that invalidates laws discriminating against women.

But he plans to introduce Wednesday a substitute that also would retain laws designed to protect women. This provision, for example, would continue to exempt the fairer sex from the draft.

He said in an interview that if the amendment passed by the House last week by a 350-15 vote should be approved by the Senate and ratified by the states, it would create chaos in the field of constitutional law.

He said constitutional lawyers with whom he has consulted say the proposed amendment—which has been pending in Congress 47 years—either means nothing or would have the effect of invalidating all federal and state laws making any distinction between men and women.

"I don't know which is the correct position," Erwin said, but if the latter interpretation is correct, adoption of the amendment "would leave a vacuum that only could be filled by subsequent acts of Congress and the state legislatures."

On Erwin's motion, the Senate Judiciary Committee voted last Wednesday to take testimony from constitutional authorities and explore all legal ramifications of the House-passed amendment.

But Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., had it placed on the Senate calendar without being referred to the Judiciary Committee for consideration.

The effect was to put the amendment in position to be called up in the Senate at any time. Mansfield has said he wants to bring it up right after Labor Day, terming the Sept. 19 deadline set by the Judiciary Committee too late.

The substitute Erwin will introduce provides, as does the House-passed amendment, that equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged on account of sex.

But it also specifically exempts women from compulsory military service and permits passage of any law "reasonably designed to promote the health, safety, privacy, education, or economic welfare of women, or to enable them to perform their duties as homemakers or mothers."

Erwin contends the House version "invalidates all acts of Congress and all state laws making any distinctions between men and women."

He said these include laws making a husband primarily responsible for the support of his wife and children, securing dowry and other property rights to women, barring women from hazardous jobs and other protective labor legislation, and requiring separate restrooms and segregation of men and women in jails.

Universities Join On Building Lease

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis and Washington universities have leased jointly a two-floor building on the city's west side to serve as a combined Army and Air Force Reserve Training Corps facility, the schools announced Tuesday.

Washington University's Army ROTC building was destroyed by fire last March and its Air Force ROTC building damaged by fire May 5.

Ag Experts To Discuss Corn Blight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department experts from the Washington area meet today to assess damage to the nation's corn crop due to a Southern corn blight.

The get together, an official said, "is find out what we can do about the situation. Where we are."

One department spokesman has stated that there could be a 10 per cent loss of the corn crop.

On the other hand, the department says that either dry or cool weather could retard further development of the blight in the main corn area. In that event, he said, the impact on the corn crop would be light.

The department arranged today's meeting in an effort to pool knowledge of the disease.

The latest official corn forecast placed the nation's yield for 1970 at 4,693,000,000 bushels. This was 3 per cent less than the July forecast, but it was still 3 per cent more than the forecast of a year ago.

The Southern corn leaf blight, a fungus disease, has been observed from time to time in the South. Its severity is highly dependent upon moisture and temperature conditions.

The department insists that a reliable estimate of total losses is not possible now because the disease is still progressing.

As a result of the situation, corn prices have risen on the market. If losses should turn out to be substantial, wheat, sorghums and other crops could be used for feeding purposes.

Because so much depends on what the disease does during the next 10 days or two weeks in the main corn belt, the department said, it would be premature to estimate losses.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Slightly more wheat, substantially more oats, barley and rye, and about half as much sorghum from 1970 crops have been placed under price-support loan as of July 31 than put under loan on 1969 crops at the comparable date last year.

The Agriculture Department said that from the 1970 crop of wheat, 126,370,260 bushels were under price-support as of July 31. A year ago, loans had been made on 124,417,062 bushels from the 1969 crop.

By states, where harvests are completed, Kansas has 70 million bushels under loan; Oklahoma, 26.6 million; Texas 10.7 million.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says Eastern Europe's farm output was 30 per cent higher in 1968 than at the start of the 1960s, despite erratic year-to-year changes in output of some individual countries.

Some highlights of a report by the Economic Research Service include:

Eastern Europe's agricultural trade amounted to $3.5 billion in imports and $2.7 billion in exports in 1968 compared with $1.7 billion worth of imports and $900 million in exports in 1955.

Technological improvements since 1960 appear to have diminished the effects that weather can have on the year-to-year field crop production.

Feed consumption has increased almost as fast as production, and more wheat has been used as feed. Total imports of grain, while declining in recent years, are still close to 6 million tons.

Fertilizer use increased at about 10 per cent throughout the area, and tractor inventories increased 12 per cent every year from 1955 to 1967.

Bulgaria, Romania, Poland and Yugoslavia are expected to continue showing strong agricultural growth rates throughout the first half of the 1970s. Hungary's position is unclear, but slow growth is predicted. East Germany's low growth rate also suggests its increase in productivity will be slow.

New Communities Uplift Life For Many in the Northeast

RESTON, Va. (AP) — William Nicoson drives in an endless stream of traffic, past shopping centers and subdivisions, to reach, not just his home, but a better way of life at a place where there are no neon lights or television antennas in sight and neighbors can sail to the grocery store.

He goes home to Reston, Va., a community of 9,000 population which as late as 1961 was rolling Virginia countryside. Now it is a virtual oasis on a desert of sprawling urbanity.

"No one can say new communities are the answer to all urban problems, but they are a way future problems can be designed out of the future," Nicoson said as he turned off the highway to lushly green Reston, past swimming pools and a golf course, to his town house on Lake Anne.

Nicoson's residency in this community is significant, not only because he is one of many Americans who have sickened of urban sprawl and sought a better life style, but because he is in a position to do something about it.

He heads the Housing and Urban Development Department's New Communities program, which by the year 2000 should have helped some 300 new communities get started.

Through the program, HUD has the power to provide loan guarantees up to $50 million to private developers. Since the program began in 1969, they have granted three guarantees and expect to add two to seven more this year.

Nicoson's goal is to help 10 new communities with populations of 100,000 each get started annually for the next 30 years. Even so the new towns will accommodate less than 20 per cent of the projected 100 million new people who will be added to the population by the year 2000.

Nicoson, who doesn't believe the nation will build as many new towns as are needed, nevertheless remains optimistic about the prospects of new towns.

Reston, 18 miles from Washington, was started by real estate developer Robert E. Simon in an effort to provide an alternative to another kind of plague—the subdividing of the nation's metropolitan areas into endless rows of look-alike houses on quarter-acre lots.

He wanted Reston to be a town where people lived and worked and played, not just a bedroom community for commuters. He wanted to make it possible for people of all ages and economic backgrounds to live in one neighborhood by providing houses of all different sizes and prices, side by side.

He planned to deed 42 per cent of the land to the community schools, roads, parks and other public facilities. A 1,000-acre area was set aside for industrial use.

So, in 1961, Simon purchased 7,400 acres in Fairfax County, Va., and started to build town houses in the country.

He spent $13 million of his own money to acquire the land and was loaned $15 million and $20 million from the Gulf Oil Corp. and John Hancock Life Insurance Co. for development.

Still, money ran out. Houses were sold but Reston lacked a large inventory of houses to interest enough buyers.

It was taking $2.5 million a year just to service debts, and Reston had still not begun to pay for itself.

In 1967, with the population at only 2,500, Gulf Oil took control.

Utopia in Maryland

Mrs. John Hamilton and her children, left to right, John, Andrea and Karissa, turn from a pleasant street into the driveway of their home in Columbia, Md. Columbia is one of the first of the carefully planned and designed new communities which it is hoped will be an answer to urban sprawl. "I wouldn't live anywhere else," says Mrs. Hamilton. (AP) changed to four. Costs were cut where possible.

Some of the new plans, however, appear to be even more grandiose, including two more lakes with a connecting water-fall.

Gulf-Reston executives now predict that no new money will have to be poured into Reston after 1971. They project that Reston will reach its 80,000 population mark by 1980. Eventually Reston should be worth $2 billion.

Simon, still a firm believer in the future of new towns, recently announced plans to build Riverfront, a 1,500-acre project on the Genesee River, near Rochester, N.Y.

In fact, the promise of profit and the opportunity to build something better than an ordinary subdivision has attracted a number of builders. HUD has 36 applications on file now for a variety of projects, including civil rights leader Floyd McKissick's "Soul City" in Warren County, N.C.

Some 40 miles from Reston, the Simon principles have been most effectively used to build Columbia, Md.

James W. Rouse, a prominent builder of shopping centers, purchased an original 14,000 acres in 1963. Later, another 3,500 acres were acquired, making Columbia larger than Manhattan.

Columbia opened in 1967 and already has equalled Reston's 9,000 population mark.

Columbia executives say there are tremendous profits to be made in building new towns but they required unlimited amounts of "patient" money, not necessitating returns for at least 10 years.

"You can't build a town looking over your shoulders at a banker," said Columbia's John Shallcross. "You have to have almost unlimited funds."

At Columbia, Rouse planned not to make a profit for at least 10 years.

Columbia was financed with an initial $50 million loan from Connecticut General Life Insurance and Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association. Later, another $30 million was borrowed. The loan terms do not require payments on the principal until 1972.

From a physical point of view, what keeps Columbia and Reston from looking like most subdivisions are rules banning neon lights, permanent clotheslines, television antennas and visible trash cans. Trees are plentiful and pedestrian walkways have been built under roads for children's safety.

A reviewing committee must approve all construction and landscaping plans, a fact that is well received by residents as an assurance that they do not have to worry about their towns becoming run down.

Neither town has a municipal government yet. Both are ruled by community associations in which each resident is a member and pays dues, in lieu of town taxes.

Eventually, the towns will be completely run by the associations, but for the time being, the associations are dominated by the developers.

Mothers say they worry less about their children in traffic because there are pedestrian walkways to cross streets and there is every conceivable recreational facility — Reston even has a small ski slope.

Nicoson lives in a three-bedroom townhouse just 25 feet from Lake Anne, a 30-acre man-made lake. Every day after work he swims or sails in his sunfish, "Matters of State."

At twilight, the Nicosons can sit on their patio and watch sailboats glide by and a fountain spray water in the middle of the lake.

Mrs. Nicoson, a blue-eyed blonde, can walk the 200 yards to the Lake Anne Shopping Center for groceries or lunch at an outdoor cafe. Some of her neighbors sail to the grocery store.

Not everything is perfect, of course. Builders put hot water faucets where cold water faucets should be. Columbia residents have had sewage back up in their basements and they complain that Wilde Lake, also man made, would be lovelier if it did not require frequent dredging to remove silt. Since both towns are less than one-quarter finished, the sounds of construction appear to be a way of life.

Some residents feel the towns have not gone far enough toward encouraging a heterogeneous population. The fact that houses in Reston begin at $27,500 has made it a predominantly upper middle class community. Columbia has sold houses as low as $15,500 and has a more middle class population.

Columbia's Inter-Faith organization took the initiative to build 300 units of low and moderate income rental units and Reston has received federal assistance for 198 units of apartments whose residents include a few families on welfare. Another 1,300 units are planned at Reston.

Ironically, it is the black residents of the new towns who feel life there is too perfect.

One black Reston couple was horrified when their child, watching the Washington riots on television, asked, "What are those Negroes doing?"

The black residents in Reston felt it necessary to form Black Focus, an organization devoted to helping black children keep their identity in the 96 per cent white community. In Columbia, about 20 per cent black, residents also wonder if they haven't turned their backs on the ghetto.

"We are dreadfully torn by what's going on in the country," said Mrs. Robert Secundy, who heads Black Focus. "We are enjoying ourselves but this is not where we need to be."

Many of the new town residents are people who said they might not be welcome other places.

Idyll By Blueprint

The lakes are man made, the fountains a product of detailed planning to avoid the ugliness and waste of the usual urban development. They form part of the attractive landscape of

Columbia, a new community which has been built in Maryland by private developers, and which will eventually be completely run by the community association. (AP)

Korean Women Have Made Great Progress

SEOUL (AP) — Old Korean saying: "A family with the voice of woman heard louder than man is doomed to failure."

Not many South Koreans who have grown up since World War II believe in that any more. There are elders who still frown sternly on sex equality in this "Land of the Morning Calm," but women are getting more and more into things that once were strictly the domain of the male.

While traditional drawbacks and difficulties remain, there are distinguished university presidents, professors, legislators, lawyers, doctors, scientists and entertainers. Records show that 110 South Korean women hold doctorate degrees, 1,500 are medical doctors and there are three lady members of the 175-seat legislature.

Korean women today also head business companies, run stores and restaurants and play golf and drive cars.

All this is a far cry from the turn of the century when restrictions on women went so far as teaching them not to sit with males after the age of 7.

At the end of World War II, the country was flooded suddenly with Western ideas, including that of equality between the sexes.

One of the areas in which the changes showed first and most importantly was in employment. In the old days, Korean women were unable to work to support themselves and were forced to depend on male relationships to exist. After the war, they moved quickly to establish themselves in varied jobs.

The number of Koreans now employed in agriculture is more than 10 million out of a population of 30 million, and women make up 38 per cent of the total agricultural workers. Hundreds of thousands of others have gone into many other types of work. The large majority, not counting those in agriculture, are unmarried and work mainly to help supplement the family budget, earn pocket money or prepare for marriage.

Although there are notable exceptions, most of these workers are in menial or unskilled jobs, whether it is in factories, offices, government agencies or banks. Their wage scales are lower than those for men. A recent survey by the Seoul city government covering 200 women workers showed 72.4 per cent were paid less than $27 a month for an 11-hour work day.

Another major move that affected women following the war was in education.

Springing up across the country were thousands of grammar and high schools and scores of universities and colleges where coeds participate as actively as men. A recent survey showed that about 24 per cent of college students are women and one out of every four professors is a woman.

Front Seat Drivers

Korean women pay attention in a Seoul driver training class as they prepare for the day when they'll be licensed to drive the family car. In the decade since a new civil law was enacted giving women expanded rights they have become increasingly involved in many activities which once were controlled exclusively by men. There are still parts of the country, however, where women are required to walk at a respectful distance behind their menfolk.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In disputing a New York Times report, the White House has handed a vote of confidence to Mayor Walter E. Washington.

The Times said Tuesday that President Nixon was preparing to replace Washington, a Negro, as figurehead of the District of Columbia's local government.

But Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, replied that "This is not the case. Mayor Washington does not plan to leave his post nor does the White House want him to."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government air safety authorities say they may prohibit flights by any airliner with a faulty public address system.

Officials said Tuesday the prospective tightening of regulations was based on two incidents:

—A recent precautionary landing at New York's Kennedy airport of a 360-passenger 747, because of an engine fire on takeoff. The plane had taken off with an inoperable PA system, as is now permitted. Although no one was injured, the confusion resulting from the pilot's inability to issue orders to the passengers gave safety experts an indication of the chaos that would have prevailed in a major emergency.

—The water ditching of a DC9 jet in the Caribbean 29 miles off St. Croix, Virgin Islands, in which 23 of the 63 persons aboard died. Because the public address system was inoperative, the pilot was unable to give a prepare-to-ditch warning and some passengers were standing, and others had seat belts unfastened, at the time of impact.

Offbeat Vehicles Bomb Recreational Retailers

By JIM CROSSLEY

While taking a quiet hike in the country, there's no telling what kind of an odd vehicle you might see dodging behind a tree or sprinting across a field. There's a wild competition among types of off-the-road, recreational vehicles right now.

Prize for the strangest goes to one that looks like a bathtub rolling on six wheels. This escapee from the dodge-em is called an "all-terrain vehicle"—ATV to its friends.

The name describes what it will do. It slogs through water, snow, mud and sand. Grades are no problem. It will flow over a fallen log, leg-up, caterpillar-fashion.

About 20 manufacturers are in the field. The cheapest models are in the neighborhood of $1,000. Basically, they have miniaturized WW II, amphibious, tracked, military machines. Firestone helped the development with the low-pressure rubber balls they call tires.

Already there is a National All-Terrain Vehicle Association. Charles Leach of New Bethlehem, Pa., is executive secretary. The second annual rally took place in a gravel pit near the community this spring. Vehicles of seven different makes competed in drag races and obstacle course events. Aug. 15, the summer rally is scheduled for Ashtabula, Ohio. So ATVs join trail bikes, mini-bikes, dune buggies and snowmobiles as part of the landscape.

They're competing for space. Over July Fourth, 287,250 people, bringing 53,500 machines—campers down to mini-bikes—converged on 17 miles of beach and the park acreage of Nipomo Sand Dunes in California. Unmuffled exhausts set up their own version of smog clouds.

Coming next is reported to be the hovercraft. Those are the ones with downward propellers for lift. Roaring along at a noisy 35-to-40 miles per hour, they travel over land and water just off the surface. Four thousand one-seaters and two-seaters are being manufactured in Canada for sale in the United States. the story.

It costs the Indian government 19.6 rupees ($2.64) to collect every 1,000 rupees ($133) in taxes, according to an official statement.

Aerospace Layoffs Creating Great Economic Problems For Specialists

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
 Julius Ginter babysits in his $40,000 home while his wife works three hours a day at a hamburger stand to earn $25 a week. Clare A. Aldrich has two engineering degrees and drives a taxicab.

Bob Lichter drives 1,270 miles each weekend from a North Carolina job to spend a few hours with his family near Cape Kennedy, Fla. After 15 years as a senior engineer, Atanas Gola-koff is a part-time night watchman, and he's bitter.

They are among the tens of thousands of scientists, engineers and technicians who have lost their jobs in the sagging aerospace industry. They are victims of severe cutbacks in government spending on defense and aerospace projects.

From Cape Kennedy, to Huntsville, Ala., to Houston, to Seattle, to Southern California, these out-of-work specialists pound the pavements in search of a job. They write scores of applications and resumes.

For most, the answer inevitably is "no." They line up by the thousands each week to receive unemployment checks. Their wives and older children work to put food on the table.

When they no longer qualify for unemployment payments and there still is no place for their specialty, they try other things.

The deep cutbacks began in 1968 when aerospace employment was at a record level of 1,418,000. It now is 1,177,000 with another 55,000 expected to be laid off by the end of 1970.

The industry has suffered a succession of blows: a slowdown in space exploration, with the space agency's budget trimmed from $5.9 billion in 1966 to $3.3 billion this year; a $6.9-billion reduction in the national defense budget, and a drop in orders for commercial aircraft. Sales and profits are falling.

Aerospace employment always has fluctuated. But economists say that now, for the first time since World War II, not only production workers but thousands of highly-educated and highly-paid engineers, scientists, chemists, designers and physicists are getting the axe.

In Southern California, the center of the nation's aerospace industry, there are an estimated 35,000 career professionals, who made between $12,000 and $35,000 a year, out of work.

"Most of these men have done only one job since they left college. They're specialists in their 40s and 50s, and they're no longer needed," said Richard Hachten, technical consultant with VIP Agency Inc., a Los Angeles employment firm for technical, managerial and professional people.

"These men are educationally and technically competent, but they have no idea how to look for a job and they need help," Hachten said.

Hachten said VIP has had a fourfold increase in the last six months in the number of persons registered with the agency. It has placed about one man in 10.

Clare A. Aldrich, 50, had 25 years with North American Rockwell Corp. in Los Angeles and earned $20,000 a year when he was laid off in 1968. As an expert in heat transfer technology, he helped design the Apollo command and service modules which carried men to the moon.

He tried free-lance consulting for a while. When that didn't work out, he turned to driving a taxicab. He works a six-day, 60-hour week and "makes about as much as when we were first married," says Mrs. Aldrich.

"We've cut out some insurance, stopped buying clothes or going out and hope to hold on to the house," she said. "All his experience and education—it's such a waste."

Julius Ginter is only 40, but he has nine children and that $40,000 ranch-style home in Thousand Oaks, Calif. He was making $15,000 a year when he was laid off last September by the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. aerospace division.

Nearly every day, his wife Helen walks to a nearby McDonald's hamburger restaurant and works about three hours for $25 a week.

Ginter, a test equipment engineer who graduated from Purdue, said, "That helps keep the wolf away, but we've found that $25 a week won't feed a family of 11. I've cashed in one of my insurance policies. I have two more policies with a little cash value, some savings and then that's it. I figure another month or so."

"I have worn out two sets of tires looking for work," Ginter said.

He is unhappy about the decline in the aerospace industry, and in May he wrote his feelings to President Nixon but did not receive an answer.

"I told the President that in 1957 the government begged for more scientists and engineers to meet the challenge of the Russian Sputnik," Ginter said. "Now we've been stranded and abandoned. I told him that if we can get men on the moon in 12 years after Sputnik, why can't this country use these highly skilled and educated people to solve some of the nation's and the world's social problems such as pollution, rapid transit and urban development?"

Many aerospace firms believe the answer to the slowdown is to diversify and to focus their engineering and analytical talents on technical problems of these social woes.

"Everyone is talking about opportunities in environmental engineering, urban renewal and housing and systems analysis in health and education," says Lockheed's senior economic adviser, Harry Biederman. "But the problem is that there is no central contracting authority. You have to contract with every city, state and county. The market is fragmented."

Boeing Co., one of the hardest hit of the aerospace giants, has dropped its Seattle-area employment from 101,500 to 55,400, with another 9,000 to go this year. Its Aerospace Group recently began a diversification effort and received a $2-million contract from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to manage two Operation Break-through housing developments.

O.C. Boileau, group vice president, foresees government departments like HUD, Transportation, and Health, Education and Welfare spearheading determination of national goals and overseeing work in such fields as rapid transit, water control, housing and airport construction.

He says Boeing wants to be ready when this happens, "but right now there's no major customer for this type of work. We have to keep after the large defense and aerospace contracts, which are getting fewer."

Until recently, the unemployed workers generally have been reluctant to leave the areas in which they have lived—particularly those in Southern California and the Florida beach communities near Cape Kennedy.

Hachten, of the VIP Agency, said, "Last year 80 per cent of those who came to us did not want to leave Southern California. In the last couple months this has reversed. With no prospects of jobs and no beans on the table, 80 per cent now say they're willing to go anywhere for a job."

When Bob Lichter, 37, was laid off as a planning engineer at Cape Kennedy last fall, he, his wife and three children pledged they would not leave Florida. They love their home in the sun.

Lichter is one of 7,000 fired at the Cape since the Apollo 11 moon landing a year ago and the subsequent stretchout in the Apollo program. When he could get nothing else to do, he dug sewer trenches for awhile.

"I thought I was going to die," he recalls. "My hands got the worst of it. I'd come home in the afternoon and just pass out on the floor."

In December, he got a job as a planning engineer in Greensboro, N.C. The family, which includes two boys, Bob Jr., 11,

High Degree Waste

Jerome A. Simons persists in expounding the value of education to his seven children. But, although he has two degrees, he lost his job as a senior industrial engineer with a Los Angeles aerospace firm early in the year, and has not yet found another

and Cary, 10, and daughter Kim, 8, decided to stay in Florida, and Lichter began commuting from Greensboro to Florida on weekends.

Every Friday evening, he climbs into his blue Volkswagen with more than 100,000 miles on it and drives the 635 miles to his home in Satellite Beach near Cape Kennedy. He arrives about 6:30 a.m. Saturday and the family is waiting with fresh coffee.

There are always minor crises to contend with—a broken down air conditioner, a leaky pipe, a faulty light fixture.

Clark J. Johnson, 50, was laid off in February from his $20,400-a-year position as a management consultant at North American Rockwell's Autonetics Division in Anaheim, Calif.

"Five months ago I said I wouldn't leave Southern California," he said. "But for any reasonable salary I'd leave tomorrow for anywhere."

Johnson said the family, including a son in college and daughter in high school, has been living on his $65-a-week unemployment check plus $500 to $700 a month drained from a savings account.

"I've about depleted my savings, and soon I no longer will be eligible for unemployment," he said. "My wife has had a couple part-time jobs, as a census enumerator and in a school district library. She's looking for something permanent."

Jerome A. Simons, 47, lost his job with North American Rockwell in Los Angeles in February. He made $17,400 a year as a senior industrial engineer. He has two degrees, including a masters in business administration.

He draws a $65 unemployment check each week. But that soon will expire. To help feed their seven children, his wife is a school teacher. All seven children, the eldest 17, also work odd jobs like baby-sitting, office help and selling watch band calendars.

Several have turned to food franchises.

Jerry Knott, 40, lost his job as a project engineer with Astrodata Corp. in Los Angeles in 1968. He drew from his savings and borrowed the rest to make a $20,000 down payment on a Denny's Restaurant franchise in Anaheim. A month later he was hired by Lockheed Aircraft in Burbank, a job which he lost in July.

His wife managed the restaurant during the nearly two years he was at Lockheed.

Prisoner Fills His Time With Painting

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — A steep flight of steps lead to a hole in the ceiling and into a tiny cluttered loft workshop. Paintings and sculptures in various stages of completion crowd the room, along with a jumble of artists' tools.

Downstairs is a tiny gallery, hung with paintings which might bring in a few dollars if sold.

Leo Darrell Chandler works in scenics, portraits and still lifes. But he prefers surrealism.

The main difference from his and many another studio is its location at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary. Besides his name, Chandler answers to a number: 76374.

Chandler is a three-time loser, twice from Texas and one from Oklahoma. His latest sentence from Oklahoma County is for armed robbery.

His original sentence for 99 years has been reduced to 50.

Few men like serving time but Chandler believes the penitentiary may be the best thing to befall him. In the two years-plus that he has been here he has turned out more than 1,000 pieces of art. Many are hung throughout the prison, including administrative offices.

He has a bit of training in cartooning on the outside, but nothing in fine arts. So far, he says, he is learning by trial and error.

"Mac (nickname for the prison) gave me an opportunity, a place to work all day long. If you could see what I was producing two years ago and what I'm producing now, it's as different as black and white.

"The ideas and imagination I've always had — the discipline needed to paint came here."

His biggest need, Chandler says, is for professional instruction. "If I had a teacher to tell what was wrong, it would be quicker."

One painting has a two-faced figure of Justice melting into a red, white and blue puddle. Behind it the faces of great American presidents carved on Mt. Rushmore are cracking.

The symbolism is blunt. The picture, Chandler says, indicates that "everything that America is built upon and founded upon is sort of falling apart."

A sculpture shows a human with elongated features chiseling himself from a block of stone. Chandler calls it, "Self-made man." His materials were latex paint, sawdust and tissue paper.

Chandler can't get rich with his paintings here in prison. What little money he makes goes for art books and supplies. He nurses the hope of reducing his sentence and getting out. He believes this time he can stay outside and have a career ahead of him.

LOCKED IN

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — His parents told young Mark Echternach that in case they weren't around and he got into trouble, he should pick up one of several telephones in the house and dial "O."

They explained this would put him in touch with the operator who could help him.

Several days later, the telephone rang and the operator asked Mrs. Echternach, "Do you have a little boy named Mark?"

Mrs. Echternach hastened to assure her that she did.

"Well," the operator replied, "He's locked in the basement."

Business Mirror

New Program Received Quickly Into Reality

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Theodore Lamont Cross has had a rare and enviable experience. Called to Washington last December to devise a new program, he not only shaped it, but saw it accepted and funded, all in just six months.

Now the nonprofit Opportunity Funding Corp., having received an initial grant of $7.4 million, is embarked on studies aimed at attracting private capital to low-income areas.

It will seek to learn, for example, if existing institutions can be enticed, perhaps with government guarantees, to accept allegedly high risk investments in ghetto areas.

The story behind the corporation contains a lesson for all those people who casually dismiss the problems of minority groups as little more than an attitude of mind rather than formal discrimination.

Cross, 46, former editor of the Harvard Law Review and now editor and publisher of the Bankers Magazine, officer in a publishing company and treasurer of the Sheraton Corp. of America, has suffered a little discrimination.

He is, as can be suspected, a solid member of the establishment. He not only understands it but, so to speak, has always had his foot in the door. The system worked for him and his clients, chief of which was the Sheraton hotel chain.

For 15 years Cross had worked with Sheraton's developers, Ernest Henderson and Robert L. Moore. He had seen how they made money grow, how they had parlayed a $25,000 investment during the 1930s into a half-billion dollar empire.

"They did it all with other people's money," said Cross. "They were masters of leverage."

Cross already had been applying some of his time to problems of the Negro community. Although Negroes made up 11 per cent of the population, he learned, they controlled only one per cent of the nation's capital.

In the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn, for example, there are only two small banking units, although the population exceeds that of the city of Cincinnati, Ohio. The establishment didn't lend to Negroes. They were unable to obtain bonds, insurance, loans. For them, leveraging was impossible.

The explanations sounded good enough. Casualty insurers said ghetto businesses were overly risky. Life insurers said Negro mortality was too high. Bankers thought of them as poor businessmen.

Too much talent was being frustrated by the establishment, Cross felt. "I just wonder," he said this week, "was there a black Edwin Land lost to us in this manner?" Land invented the Polaroid camera.

Cross' thoughts eventually became a highly praised book, "Black Capitalism," subtitled "Strategy for Business in the Ghetto."

It's thesis is this: "We need a national scheme to make it possible for insurers, bonders, leasing companies, life and fire insurers and banks to do business in the black community. It should be a national vehicle."

Cross dismissed the notion that new institutions were needed and that the solution should be through handouts. The existing system, however, should be changed so as to serve rather than oppress.

Last December, Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, called Cross to Washington and asked him to put his ideas into a program, and that's how Opportunity Funding Corp. was formed.

MUSIC ABOUT NEUROSES NEW YORK (AP) — "Adlerian," a string quartet with six movements, each one about a neurosis, will be given its American premiere Feb. 10 at Town Hall.

Composer Richard Stoker, 32, an Englishman, was inspired to write it by reading Viennese psychologist Alfred Adler's book, "Superiority and Social Interest."

The centennial of Adler's birth is Feb. 7. He died in 1937.

The music's movements are titled: "Predestination Complex," "Spectator-Proof Complex," "As If Complex," "No-Exclusion Complex," "Redeemer Complex" and "Leader Complex."

Addicts Find Renewed Hope in Project

NEW YORK (AP) — In a small room, in a renovated old building, 12 people occupy two couches and a few chairs. Two flies buzz in the still air, but the group is too busy talking to notice.

A sign on the wall says, "Don't Quit."

"Liz, what's the matter with you this morning?" a boy begins.

"Nothing. I'm always like this." Fifteen-year-old Liz, chin in hand, sits against the wall. Her face is blank.

"No, you're just looking for an excuse to walk out on the streets."

Another boy breaks in. "You know Liz, I identify with you, but you gotta take all that slime out of you. We all did messed up things out in the streets, but here we ought to be able to talk to each other."

Liz doesn't answer.

Chris Maples, assistant director of Project Return breaks in.

"Liz, man, you've got 100 reasons why you don't want to do anything. Can you be honest enough to say you want to leave because you want to shoot dope? If you can't we're going to talk to somebody else who really wants help."

Liz remains silent, and the group breaks up.

The scene is Project Return, a therapeutic community designed to help drug addicts go back into the world. Some of what the program's leaders call their "family" are having a daily encounter session.

Later, after the group encounter is over, Maples takes a visitor upstairs to his office and talks about the session.

"That was a good one today — not as harsh as it sounded — and it's nothing to get uptight about. The sessions are to point out to the trainees their faults and the problems that led them to dope.

"We show them that we care," he continued, pointing to a wall and a framed quotation from Khalil Gibran: "To wake at dawn and give thanks for another day of loving."

It's a tough kind of love, but love nevertheless that is the keynote of the house.

"When an addict comes in here, the only thing he knows is how to use drugs," Maples explained. "His only responsibility is to his habit. We show him the other things he can do if he wants. The things he learns here, he'll take out into his life with him forever."

Project Return was opened in January, 1970, by Julio Martinez and Carlos Pagan, both ex-addicts. It operates under the direction of New York City's Addiction Services Agency. Martinez is area director and Pagan is director.

"It's a 24-hour-a-day job," Pagan said. "But I was an addict for 15 years, so I know how important it is to be here. If you're gonna be a father, you gotta be a good one."

Pagan said he started taking drugs when he was "a skinny Puerto Rican kid, just to be part of the group." Now he's not so skinny and his face glows with enthusiasm.

"If a kid messes up, I talk to him, and get mad at him, but I won't throw him out," Pagan continued. "It comes down to taking chances with them, but it's worth it."

Project Return, the directors explained, uses a unique approach to the treatment of addicts. Basically it is a variation on the therapeutic communities (which replaced jails or mental hospital treatment for addicts).

Such therapy centers traditionally have been structured as round-the-clock communities which take from one to three years to return the addict to society.

"We at Project Return," Maples said, "think it can be done in from six months to a year. We're sure that we have highly motivated people here because before they're even accepted into the program, they have to go through a three-week induction period, in which they have no privileges. After that, they become part of the family."

The program is a live-in, live-out community, meaning that although overnight arrangements may be made for a few trainees to spend nights there, the directors like for as many as possible to go back out into the community.

There are about 37 trainees in the program, both boys and girls, ages from 15 to 30. Nilsa

Rivera, a petite 27-year-old, is in charge of the girls. She speaks softly about the special problems women addicts have to face.

"It's stronger towards the negative for them," she explained. "It takes longer for a woman to put prostitution, abortions and all the habits of the street behind her. The girls have to start trusting again."

The treatment is structured on three points: education, with the trainees in classes for about three hours every day, working towards a high school equivalency exam; therapy, work and handicrafts; and re-entry, helping the trainees get back to the community and helping them find jobs if necessary.

The group at Project Return was channeled there from New York's Community Orientation Centers, store front operations where the addict is de-toxified, and where he has to stay for a period varying from three weeks to several months, depending on each case.

In the short time since Project Return was opened, there already has been one graduate and the directors say several more trainees are almost ready to leave. Although the success of the program will take longer to evaluate, the directors are hopeful — and happy about their methods.

Pagan, thoughtful for a moment, shook his hair out of his face and said, "You know something, maybe even for the so-called squares, this kind of community could be good, because we all have problems. These are human beings with problems too. They just shot dope."

PRESTONSBURG, Ky. (AP) — There are two reasons why folks might stop to watch Ellis Gearhart plow his garden in mountainous Eastern Kentucky.

One is Buck, the other John — a yoke of three year old oxen which Gearhart prefers over a horse or mule. They're probably the only ones in an area where 50 years ago these draft animals were used to transport heavy gas and oil drilling equipment from the valleys to the hillsides.

"I've got a wagon, a sled and a plow, work 'em to anything, even lay off ground," explained Gearhart. "They have to be broke pretty good to lay off ground and plow the rows before planting crops."

"I think they work better than mules. Last year I raised three acres of corn with them."

These 1,000-pound Jerseys responded satisfactorily to their long training under Gearhart.

"I can catch 'em anywhere," he said. "They're broke to the old fashion way. It takes about two years to train 'em, to make 'em mind."

"I work 'em single, or I work 'em double," he continued, "just use a yoke."

The 60-year-old Gearhart hinted at a sort of natural attachment for the oxen — "My dad use to have them."

So, about two and one-half years ago Gearhart bought the two steers, one in Mount Sterling and the other "up the river" in Floyd County. The cost of keeping the work cattle is about the same as feeding a horse or mule.

Gearhart figures the oxen could work for 25 years "if you take good care of 'em. I know a fellow that had a yoke that long." During the winter, the oxen are kept in a barn. "Feed 'em dry feed and they stand up pretty good," said Gearhart, "but they don't take much to grass."
